Sheeprearing And The Wool Trade In Italy During The Roman Period:

Sheep-rearing and the Wool Trade in Italy During the Roman Period Joan M. Frayn, 1984 For this study of sheep rearing in Roman Italy Dr Frayn presents and evaluates material from epigraphy law literature archaeology painting and sculpture to illuminate the social life of shepherd communities Throughout the ancient evidence for Italian practice is supplemented with comparative material from other ancient societies and where relevant from more modern farming experience The Roman Empire Colin Michael Wells, 1995 This sweeping history of the Roman Empire from 44 BC to AD 235 has three purposes to describe what was happening in the central administration and in the entourage of the emperor to indicate how life went on in Italy and the provinces in the towns in the countryside and in the army camps and to show how these two different worlds impinged on each other Colin Wells's vivid account is now available in an up to date second edition Making Textiles in pre-Roman and Roman Times Margarita Gleba, Judit Pásztoakai-Szeőke, 2013-10-30 Textile production is an economic necessity that has confronted all societies in the past While most textiles were manufactured at a household level valued textiles were traded over long distances and these trade networks were influenced by raw material supply labour skills costs as well as by regional traditions This was true in the Mediterranean regions and Making Textiles in pre Roman and Roman times explores the abundant archaeological and written evidence to understand the typological and geographical diversity of textile commodities Beginning in the Iron Age the volume examines the foundations of the textile trade in Italy and the emergence of specialist textile production in Austria the impact of new Roman markets on regional traditions and the role that gender played in the production of textiles Trade networks from far beyond the frontiers of the Empire are traced whilst the role of specialized merchants dealing in particular types of garment and the influence of Roman collegia on how textiles were produced and distributed are explored Of these collegia that of the fullers appears to have been particularly influential at a local level and how cloth was cleaned and treated is examined in detail using archaeological evidence from Pompeii and provincial contexts to understand the processes behind this area of the textile trade Production, Trade, and Connectivity in Pre-Roman Italy Jeremy Armstrong, Sheira Cohen, 2022-04-25 This book explores the complex relationship between production trade and connectivity in pre Roman Italy confronting established ideas about the connections between people objects and ideas and highlighting how social change and community formation are rooted in individual interactions The volume engages with and builds upon recent paradigm shifts in the archaeology and history of the ancient Mediterranean which have centred the social and economic processes that produce communities It utilises a series of case studies encompassing the production trade and movement of objects and people to explore new models for how production is organised and the recursive relationship which exists between the cultural and economic spheres of human society The contributions address issues of agency and production at multiple scales of analysis from larger theoretical discussions of trade and identity across different regions to context specific explorations of production techniques and the distribution of material culture across the Italian peninsula Production Trade and Connectivity in Pre Roman Italy is intended for students and scholars interested in the archaeology and history of pre Roman and early Republican Italy but especially production trade community formation and identity Those interested in issues of cultural interaction and material change in the ancient Mediterranean world will find useful comparative examples and methodological approaches throughout The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

From Barbarians to New Men : Greek, Roman, and Modern Perceptions of Peoples from the Central Apennines Emma Dench, 1995-11-02 The Central Apennine peoples represented alternately as decadent and dangerous snake charming barbarians or as personifications of manly wisdom and virtue as austere and worthy new men were important figures in Greek and Roman ideology Concentrating on the period between the later fourth century BC and the aftermath of the Social War this book considers the ways in which Greek and Roman perceptions of these peoples developed reflecting both the shifting needs of Greek and Roman societies and the character of interaction between the various cultures of ancient Italy Most importantly it illuminates the development of a specifically Roman identity through the creation of an ideology of incorporation The book is also about the interface between these attitudes and the dynamics of the perception of local communities in Italy of themselves illuminated by both literary and archaeological evidence An important new contribution to modern debates on Greek and Roman perceptions of other peoples the book argues that the closely interactive conditions of ancient Italy helped to produce far less distanced and exotic images than those of the barbarians in fifth century Athenian
