Leipziger, Peter A. Petri, 1993 The World Bank is changing the way it does business in the energy sector This Policy Paper is one of two that outlines the Bank s new policies for the sector The review was prompted by concern about the effects of power generation on the environment and on populations that may be resettled to make way for projects Another stimulus was the macroeconomic reality of fewer investment resources in many countries And many developing countries are becoming more receptive to reforming the way energy is produced and consumed This paper credits the public monopoly approach of the last 30 years with facilitating expansion of power supplies capturing technical economies of scale and making effective use of scarce managerial and technical skills Nonetheless it recommends several new policies to improve the performance of the electric power sector in developing countries These reforms will guide future Bank activities in the sector Bank loans for electric power will go first to countries clearly committed to improving the performance of their power sectors The Bank will also discourage subsidies on energy prices and will encourage private investment in utilities And it will provide financing to help the least developed countries import power where local generation is not practical The efficiency of production and use of electric power in developing countries is examined in a companion paper Energy Efficiency and Conservation in the Developing World The World Bank s Role The World Bank s Role in the Electric Power Sector is also available in Spanish La funcion del Banco Mundial en el sector de la electricidad Politicas para efectuar una reforma institucional regulatoria y financiera eficaz ISBN 0 8213 2451 9 Stock No 12451 7 95 Price code 007 Spanis Borrower Ownership of Adjustment Programs and the Political Economy of Reform John H. Johnson, Sulaiman S. Wasty, 1993-01-01 China has done much to reform its price system achieve macroeconomic stability and restore growth Nevertheless price distortions remain in three key areas This study suggests further price reforms for the energy grain and transport sectors It explains why energy price adjustments should have only a modest effect on consumer prices but a highly positive effect on the economy It discusses why China may have to reduce consumer subsidies to achieve the necessary reforms for grain prices The study describes what the government must do to strengthen commodity markets generate competition and make allowances for seasonal price variations China s transport sector has been a critical development bottleneck The paper reviews tariff adjustments and other reforms that would modernize the transport system and help it meet growing demand These reforms also would encourage energy conservation and help integrate the national economy

Developing Effective Employment Services David Fretwell, Susan Goldberg, 1993-01-01 Employment services promote the efficient allocation of labor by among other things promoting labor mobility and improving productivity This paper assesses the cost effectiveness of services designed to expedite the exchange of labor between job seekers and employers The authors find that the benefits of employment services are not uniform Benefits may be reduced in small countries with a large informal sector or when the economy is stagnant and the demand for labor is depressed even though the need for the services may be greater under such conditions The authors advocate a balance between public and private sector delivery of employment services They favor opening the private market for what they term support services which increase productivity and include income support and retraining Such support services are distinct from what the authors call core services provision of which they believe is properly left to the public sector Core services to assist job seekers include job placement services relocation assistance counseling and skills assessment The authors find that core services are cost effective and that public sector providers can ensure that such services are delivered to unemployed low skilled or semiskilled workers whose needs may not be met by the private sector The paper reviews the justification for and development of employment services over time and compares various approaches to the provision of such services It reviews the various types of employment services and examines the differences between public and private sector delivery

The Political Economy of the Chinese Coal Industry Tim Wright, 2012-03-12 Coal mining is one of China's largest industries and provides an excellent case study through which to consider the broader issues of China's transition from socialism to capitalism focussing on the shift to a market economy the rise of rural industry and the situation of China's working class Coal was one of the pillars of the planned economy but the author argues its shift to market based operations has been protracted and difficult particularly in moving from the artificially low prices of the planned economy to market prescribed prices a change that had a major impact on the industry's financial performance. The book goes on to consider the growth of small rural coal mines as part of the Township and Village Enterprises (TVEs) programme; these small mines have brought prosperity to areas where small manufacturing enterprises are not competitive but at the same time have been the cause of many social and environmental problems. It also examines the situation of coal miners, arguably one of the most vulnerable segments of the Chinese working class under socialism and under capitalism, paying particular attention to the issue of work safety and coal mine disasters. The book provides a comprehensive and coherent treatment of these issues from the establishment of the People's Republic up to 2010.

The Reformability of China's State Sector Guanzhong James Wen, Dianqing Xu, 1997. China has achieved alarming success in accelerating the economic growth rate since it started economic reform about 16 years ago. However, its state sector is still running severe deficits. Even though its productivity might be improved since the reform started, its financial situation nevertheless has been worsening, mainly as a result of increased competition from the rapidly expanding non-state sector. Therefore, the reform of this sector has become an urgent problem. All the papers collected in this book are closely related to the various issues that the reform of the state sector has to solve. Among the contributors are Professor Merton H. Miller, a Nobel laureate and expert on firm finance and governance; Mr Ji Lin, the vice president of the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences; Dr Justin Y. Lin, the director of the Center of China's Economic Research at Beijing University; Professor Gang Fan, the well-known Chinese economist and vice director of the Institute of Economic Research at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences; Professor Guoqiang Tian, an expert on mechanism design at Texas A M University; and many other researchers and professors from China and the North America's research institutes and universities. Therefore, this book will be extremely useful and relevant to those economists as well as government decision makers working in the field of the transitional economy.

Civil Service Reform and the World Bank Barbara Nunberg, John R. Nellis, 1995-01-01. Annotation: Surveys the World Bank's experience in supporting developing country civil service reforms and begins to assess the progress made. The World Bank recognizes the importance of the civil service to the general welfare of the 4.6 billion people in low and middle income countries. Between 1981 and 1991, civil service reform was a prominent feature of 90 World Bank lending operations. This paper surveys the Bank's experience in supporting this reform and assesses the progress made. The lending operations concentrated on two separate dimensions: 1. Shorter term emergency steps to reform public pay and employment policies which center on measures to contain the cost and the size of the civil service; 2. longer term civil service strengthening efforts directed toward ongoing sustained management improvements. After examining the record of these reforms, the authors conclude that the results have been mixed at best. They recommend greater emphasis on devising a coherent, far-reaching strategy for reform and on detailing the set of tactics by which these goals will be achieved.
