Sharing Authority Effectively Kenneth P. Mortimer, Thomas Raymond McConnell, 1978 Understanding Authority in Higher Education Dean O. Smith, 2015-01-22 Within the complex environment of higher education administrators and faculty members face daunting challenges in their unique domains of institutional governance Many of the greatest challenges arise from basic misunderstandings of authority and its limitations by administrators and faculty members alike These misunderstandings are the primary source of disruptive confusion mistrust and mismanagement Consequently an institution's governance would improve significantly if its personnel clearly understand the fundamental principles of authority To bring about this improvement Understanding Authority in Higher Education clarifies issues of authority in an academic setting Throughout it introduces basic concepts of higher education administration and then examines the limits of authority in context Pedagogically the book strives continuously to ascertain whether authority is used properly from a legal perspective emphasizing the influence of academic cultural norms on legal principles and vice versa But Understanding Authority in Higher Education goes further than law textbooks by using real and anecdotal case studies to examine aspects of authority that don't appear in court proceedings those that lie beyond the reach of the law In these cases the book explores the anthropology the behavior and the culture of authority in the academic environment Delegating Effectively Clemson Turregano, Ccl, 2013-07-22 In today's organizations leaders are neither able nor expected to do everything themselves The consequences of trying to do so can be dire That's why the ability to delegate effectively to assign new projects and responsibilities to individuals or a team and providing the authority resources directions and support needed to achieve the expected results is an essential leadership skill This guidebook outlines the benefits of effective delegation and the fears and concerns that can prevent or hinder it then offers four key ideas that leaders can use to enable better delegation

Decline of Faculty Governance Larry G. Gerber, 2014-09-15 There was a time when the faculty governed universities Not anymore The Rise and Decline of Faculty Governance is the first history of shared governance in American higher education Drawing on archival materials and extensive published sources Larry G Gerber shows how the professionalization of college teachers coincided with the rise of the modern university in the late nineteenth century and was the principal justification for granting teachers power in making educational decisions In the twentieth century the efforts of these governing faculties were directly responsible for molding American higher education into the finest academic system in the world In recent decades however the growing complexity of multiversities and the application of business strategies to manage these institutions threatened the concept of faculty governance Faculty shifted from being autonomous professionals to being employees The casualization of the academic labor market Gerber argues threatens to erode the quality of universities As more faculty become contingent employees rather than tenured career professionals enjoying both job security and intellectual autonomy universities become factories in the knowledge economy In addition to tracing the evolution of faculty decision making this historical narrative provides readers with an important perspective on contemporary debates about the best way to manage America s colleges and universities Gerber also reflects on whether American colleges and universities will be able to retain their position of global preeminence in an increasingly market driven environment given that the system of governance that helped make their success possible has been fundamentally altered

The Fallacies and Prospects of Educational Planning Hans N. Weiler, 1980 Differentiation Theory and Social Change Jeffrey C. Alexander, Paul Burbank Colomy, 1990 Governance and the postcolony David Everatt, 2019-08-01 Civil society NGOs governments and multilateral institutions all repeatedly call for improved or good governance yet they seem to speak past one another Governance is in danger of losing all meaning precisely because it means many things to different people in varied locations This is especially true in sub Saharan Africa Here the postcolony takes many forms reflecting the imperial project with painful accuracy Offering a set of multidisciplinary analyses of governance in different sectors crisis management water food security universities in different locales across sub Saharan Africa and from different theoretical approaches network to adversarial network governance this volume makes a useful addition to the growing debates on how to govern It steers away from offering a correct definition of governance or from promoting a particular position on postcoloniality It gives no neat conclusion but invites readers to draw their own conclusions based on these differing approaches to and analyses of governance in the postcolony As a robust critical assessment of power and accountability in the sub Saharan context Governance and the Postcolony Views from Africa brings together topical case studies that will be a valuable resource for those working in the field of African international relations public policy public management and administration

Advisory Council Intelligence Information Sharing Final Report and Recommendations , Executive Summary The National Infrastructure Advisory Council NIAC set out to determine whether the right people are receiving the right intelligence information at the right time to support robust protection and resilience of the Nation s critical infrastructure More than 200 interviews and extensive open source research uncovered a wealth of insights on this complex problem First there have been marked improvements in the sharing of intelligence information within the Federal Intelligence Community and between the Federal Government and regions States and municipalities However this level of improvement has not been matched in the sharing of intelligence information between the Federal Government and private sector owners and operators of critical infrastructure Despite some notable successes this bi directional sharing is still relatively immature leaving a large gap between current practices and an optimal system of effective public private intelligence information sharing We observe that trust is the essential glue to make this public private system work Trust results when partner capabilities are understood and valued processes are tailored to leverage these capabilities and these processes are tested and proven valuable to all partners When breakdowns in information sharing occur it erodes trust and is counterproductive to risk management Information sharing is perhaps the most important factor in the protection and resilience of critical infrastructure Information on threats to infrastructure and their likely impact underlies nearly every security decision made by owners and operators including which assets to protect how to make operations more resilient how to plan for potential disasters when to ramp up to higher levels of security and how to respond in the immediate aftermath of a disaster We looked at intelligence information flowing from the Federal Government to critical infrastructure owners and operators as well as risk information flowing from critical infrastructure owners and operators to the government Our study reveals the complex ways information is gathered analyzed packaged and shared among government and the owners and operators of critical infrastructures In tackling this complex subject we examined the different stages of the intelligence cycle including requirements generation information collection analysis and dissemination To gather a variety of perspectives we conducted extensive interviews with security directors chief executives subject matter experts and government executives and managers Recognizing that distinct sector characteristics shape information sharing needs we conducted case studies of five sectors Commercial Facilities Healthcare and Public Health Energy Oil and Natural Gas Banking and Finance and Chemical While we found some information sharing approaches to be effective others were not As a result we adopted a capability maturity approach which acknowledges that different Federal agencies have different abilities to share information effectively and we sought to build on what is working
