Dolan, 2016-12-05 Arguing that vision was the dominant mode for understanding suffering in the Romantic era Elizabeth A. Dolan shows that Mary Wollstonecraft Charlotte Smith and Mary Shelley experimented with aesthetic and scientific visual methods in order to expose the social structures underlying suffering Dolan's exploration of illness healing and social justice in the writings of these three authors depends on two major questions How do women writers innovations in literary form make visible previously unseen suffering And how do women authors portray embodied vision to claim literary authority Dolan's research encompasses a wide range of primary sources in science and medicine including nosology health travel botany and ophthalmology allowing her to map the resonances and disjunctions between medical theory and literature This in turn points towards a revisioning of enduring themes in Romanticism such as the figure of the Romantic poet the relationship between the mind and nature sensibility and sympathy solitude and sociability landscape aesthetics the reform novel and Romantic era science Dolan's book is distinguished by its deep engagement with several disciplines and genres making it a key text for understanding Romanticism the history of medicine and the position of the woman writer during the period      Love in the Moment Karen Chien, 2020-03-01 The inspiring story of how a courageous mother's dedication and unconditional love for her son an artist on the autism spectrum helped him become an internationally renowned artist and double medal swimming champion at the Special Olympics      Littell's Living Age, 1854      Common Threads Adele Flood, 2014-10-16 Common Threads explores ideas of artistic identity and memory contained within the narrated stories of ten textile artists It reveals how individuals bring a sense of linearity to fragments of memory and create a cohesive sense of self through telling their life s story By employing a systems model the author constructs new ideas of interrogating identity and art practice The model Constructing Personal Narratives brings into focus the hermeneutic circle of learning and identifies the importance and need to provide opportunities for lifelong learning The stories told by the participants who returned to the formal education sector later in life reveal the profound effects adult learning had upon their lives The writer reveals how the model generated the interview questions that provided the rich biographical content that emerged within dialogues The common threads of experience and feelings of the ten participants and the author are revealed and from these emerge deepened understandings of both the place of stories within our lives and how stories can further an understanding of what it means to be an artist Emerging from these stories are implications for teaching practice these are presented as observations and questions in terms of how educators should be part of the learning experience with those they educate
