Reading Disability Progress And Research Needs In Dy:

Handbook of Reading Disability Research Anne McGill-Franzen, Richard Allington, 2010-09-17 Bringing together a wide range of research on reading disabilities this comprehensive Handbook extends current discussion and thinking beyond a narrowly defined psychometric perspective Emphasizing that learning to read proficiently is a long term developmental process involving many interventions of various kinds all keyed to individual developmental needs it addresses traditional questions What is the nature or causes of reading disabilities How are reading disabilities assessed How should reading disabilities be remediated To what extent is remediation possible but from multiple or alternative perspectives Taking incursions into the broader research literature represented by linguistic and anthropological paradigms as well as psychological and educational research the volume is on the front line in exploring the relation of reading disability to learning and language to poverty and prejudice and to instruction and schooling The editors and authors are distinguished scholars with extensive research experience and publication records and numerous honors and awards from professional organizations representing the range of disciplines in the field of reading disabilities Throughout their contributions are contextualized within the framework of educators struggling to develop concrete instructional practices that meet the learning needs of the lowest achieving readers Physical Fitness and the Child's Reading Problem Pearl M.

Rosborough, 1963 Brain Function, 1963 Neuropsychology David Andrewes, 2013-05-13 This comprehensive textbook provides an up to date and accessible account of the theories that seek to explain the complex relationship between brain and behaviour Drawing on the latest research findings from the disciplines of neuropsychology neuroscience cognitive neuroscience and cognitive neuropsychology the author provides contemporary models of neuropsychological processes The book provides a fresh perspective that takes into account the modern advances of functional neuroimaging and other new research techniques The emphasis at all times is on bridging the gap between theory and practice discussion of theoretical models is framed in a clinical context and the author makes frequent use of case studies to illustrate the clinical context There is coverage of the neuropsychology of disorders associated with areas such as perception attention memory and language emotion and movement A third generation text this book uniquely aims to integrate these different areas by describing the common influences of these functions Following on from this there is information on the clinical management of patients in the area of recovery and rehabilitation These last chapters focus on the author's own experience and illustrate the importance of a more systematic approach to intervention which takes into account theoretical views of recovery from brain damage Neuropsychology From Theory to Practice is the first comprehensive textbook to cover research from all disciplines committed to understanding neuropsychology It will provide a valuable resource for students professionals and clinicians The Reading Teacher, 1971 How to Increase Reading Ability Albert Josiah Harris, Edward R. Sipay, 1975

Research in Education, 1970-12 Journal of Reading, 1964 Recent Advances in the Study of Dyslexia

,2024-01-10 Dyslexia is biological in origin but environmental factors also play a role It affects people differently but typical difficulties include reading writing and spelling limited working memory capacity and difficulties with organization sequencing and concentration Early identification is crucial so that learners can receive the support that they need This book explores contemporary perspectives on dyslexia It starts by outlining approaches to support dyslexic students drawn from the application of cognitive science It moves on to consider treatments the role of technology and approaches for working with teaching assistants
