Industrialization in the 1980s Raphie Kaplinsky, 2010-11-26 First published in 1984 this work explores the issues surrounding the industrialisation of the Third World at the beginning of the 1980s The expectation that Newly Industrialising Countries would facilitate industrial growth via an outward orientated strategy had begun to be the combination of growing recession growing protectionism and the diffusion of radical microelectronics related technical change In addition the high indebtedness of developing countries made them increasingly dependent on assistance from the IMF and IBRD whose policies increased the tendency towards de industrialisation The papers in this volume explore all of these issues and their implication for LDC industrial strategy in the 1980s The Role of the State in Development Processes Claude

Communism and Reform in East Asia (RLE Modern East and South East Asia) David S. G. Goodman, 2015-04-10 The West no longer regards communism in East Asia as a threat On the contrary because the communist party states of East Asia appear to be undergoing a process of reform directed primarily at economic modernization it is now regarded as a potential market The West's attitude is reinforced by the recognition of East Asia's economic importance more generally a perception which in itself undoubtedly stimulated reform in the region's communist party states The causes extent and consequences of reform in the East Asian communist party states are the concerns of the contributions to this volume first published in 1988

It includes chapters on the reform process in China North Korea Vietnam and Mongolia as well as examinations of the roles played by both China and the Soviet Union in the Asia Pacific region They demonstrate that a belief in a simple single process of economic and political liberalization brought about by the drive for economic modernization the production imperative is a misleading argument Although the production imperative might act as a stimulus to reform it is neither a sufficient nor even a necessary condition In individual countries the communist party s search for legitimacy a change of leadership or the relationship with the USSR have equally been the spur to reform The drive for economic modernization may even be a consequence of the communist party s desire to reform rather than a cause The absence of a uniform pattern does not detract from the potential consequences of economic and political change These challenge socialist thinking on the nature of collective life ownership and rural society
