Twentieth-Century and Contemporary American Literature in Context Linda De Roche, 2021-06-04 This four-volume reference work surveys American literature from the early 20th century to the present day featuring a diverse range of American works and authors and an expansive selection of primary source materials. Bringing useful and engaging material into the classroom, this four-volume set covers more than a century of American literary history from 1900 to the present. Twentieth Century and Contemporary American Literature in Context profiles authors and their works and provides overviews of literary movements and genres through which readers will understand the historical, cultural, and political contexts that have shaped American writing. Twentieth Century and Contemporary American Literature in Context provides wide coverage of authors, works, genres, and movements that are emblematic of the diversity of modern America. Not only are major literary movements represented such as the Beats, but this work also highlights the emergence and development of modern Native American literature, African American literature, and other representative groups that showcase the diversity of American letters. A rich selection of primary documents and background material provides indispensable information for student research.

A Reader's Guide to the Twentieth-century Novel Frank Kermode, 1995 Can you remember what happens at the end of 1984? Or what triggered Quentin Compson's suicide in The Sound and the Fury? Perhaps you need to know who won the National Book Award in 1960, how many times the Booker Prize has been awarded to non-British writers, or what novels people were reading the year the Titanic sank. The answers to all these questions and many more can now be found in A Reader's Guide to the Twentieth Century Novel. Wide-ranging and authoritative, A Reader's Guide to the Twentieth Century Novel is a unique and invaluable guide to modern fiction written in English. Arranged chronologically from Joseph Conrad's Lord Jim to E. Annie Proulx's The Shipping News, it contains detailed accounts of some 750 novels from the United States, Britain, Ireland, Canada, Africa, India, Australia, New Zealand, and the Caribbean. All of the century's major novelists are represented alongside less-celebrated writers whose work has been unjustly neglected, such as beloved children's authors as A. A. Milne, Frances Hodgson Burnett, and Kenneth Grahame, and such popular authors as Agatha Christie, Ian Fleming, Daphne du Maurier, and others whose work has left a definite stamp on readers' imaginations. Each lively entry supplies a summary of the plot, places the novel in a biographical and historical context, and provides a provocative critical assessment. Written by a team of thirty-eight contributors made up of critics, biographers, novelists, historians, academics, and literary journalists, all entries are fully cross-referenced and supplemented at the end of the book by brief biographical notes on all authors and by helpful alphabetical indexes of novels and authors.

Interwoven with the entries are also 150 short extracts illustrating the voice and style of many featured novels from Rudyard Kipling's Kim to Roddy Doyle's Paddy Clarke Ha Ha Ha. The chronological arrangement of the Guide gives readers fascinating insight into the sorts of books people were reading at any given period and each year is prefaced by a selection of contemporary events from the worlds of the arts, science and politics revealing the background against which novels were written and published. This arrangement also allows readers to trace the literary history of twentieth century fiction and to follow the development of individual authors. A celebration of modern fiction and an indispensable aide-memoire. A Reader's Guide to the Twentieth Century Novel is a book to be read for pleasure as well as consulted for reference. Whitaker's Books in Print, 1998

Harner's Literary Research Guide Modern Language Assn of America 1989, larger academic libraries will want Marcuse's volume. Jack Bales, Mary Washington Coll Lib, Fredericksburg, Va.
