Explorations in Interdisciplinary Reading Robbie F. Castleman, Darian R. Lockett, Stephen O. Presley, 2017-05-31 The tension between reading Scripture as primarily a historically situated text on one hand and binding canon addressed to a community of faith on the other constitutes a crucial issue for biblical interpretation Considering the ways the disciplines of Biblical Studies Biblical Theology Patristics and Systematic Theology approach Scripture and biblical interpretation the Biblical Theology Hermeneutics and Theological Disciplines study group within the Institute of Biblical Research established a four year project aimed at clarifying the relationships between these diverse lines of inquiry into scriptural interpretation found in each of these disciplines The goal of this project was to foster a sustained discussion where exploratory papers might be proposed composed and rewritten for final form using a collaborative process This research project and the present volume resulting from it offers valuable insights into the integration of Biblical Studies and Theology as subdisciplines within the academy The essays collected here fall naturally into the following sections Exegetical Explorations Reception Historical Explorations and finally Theological Practical Explorations Adventures in Reading: Exploration Dorothy Nell

Knolle, 1947 Working Memory and Exploration in Training the Knowledge and Skills Required by Digital Systems Jean L. Dyer, 2001 Variations in computer based training CBT procedures were compared in training the skills and knowledge required of a prototype map interface for the Land Warrior system Soldiers from four Infantry courses participated representing the chain of command within an Infantry platoon from platoon leader to rifleman Soldiers were first trained on codes that uniquely identified individuals and units on the map Then soldiers learned how to use map functions such as pan zoom determine range and find individuals and units Lessons that contained a large volume of information before soldiers could apply that information and commit it to memory resulted in low scores on both the code and map exercises Breaking up the content into smaller chunks of information tended to be more effective Although soldiers who learned the map on their own via an exploratory condition had the lowest map performance exploratory learning may have potential as these soldiers spent relatively little time exploring The results demonstrate the importance of adapting to individual differences in the learning rate of soldiers They also provide insights regarding how to design effective and efficient CBT for digital systems

Reading Romans after Supersessionism J. Brian Tucker,2018-08-20 The Letter to the Romans explains the way Paul thought Jewish covenantal identity continued now that the messianic era had begun More particularly Paul addresses the relevance of Abraham for Jews and gentiles the role of Torah and the way it is contextualized in Christ All too often however these topics are read in supersessionist ways This book argues that such readings are unpersuasive It offers instead a post supersessionist perspective in which Jewish covenantal identity continues in Paul's gospel Paul is no destroyer of worlds The aim of this book is to offer a different view of the key interpretive points that lead to supersessionist understandings of Paul's most important letter It draws on the findings of those aligned with the Paul within Judaism paradigm and accents those findings with a light touch from social identity theory When combined these resources help the reader to hear Romans afresh in a way that allows both Jewish and non Jewish existing identities continued relevance Visualization in Mathematics, Reading and Science Education Linda M. Phillips, Stephen P. Norris, John S. Macnab, 2010-09-02 Science education at school level worldwide faces three perennial problems that have become more pressing of late These are to a considerable extent interwoven with concerns about the entire school curriculum and its reception by students The first problem is the increasing intellectual isolation of science from the other subjects in the school curriculum Science is too often still taught didactically as a collection of pre determined truths about which there can be no dispute As a consequence many students do not feel any ownership of these ideas Most other school subjects do somewhat better in these regards For example in language classes students suggest different interpretations of a text and then debate the relative merits of the cases being put forward Moreover ideas that are of use in science are presented to students elsewhere and then re taught often using different terminology in science For example algebra is taught in terms of x, y, z in mathematics classes but students are later unable to see the relevance of that to the meaning of the universal gas laws in physics where p, v, t are used The result is that students are confused and too often alienated leading to their failure to achieve that extraction of an education from a scheme of instruction which Jerome Bruner thought so highly desirable Explorations in Learning and the Brain Ton de Jong, Tamara van Gog, Kathleen Jenks, Sarah Manlove, Janet van Hell, Jelle Jolles, Jeroen van Merriënboer, Theo van Leeuwen, Annemarie Boschloo, 2009-04-21 This volume presents a short review study of the potential relationships between cognitive neuroscience and educational science Conducted by order of the Dutch Programme Council for Educational Research of the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research NWO of the American NSF the review aims to identify 1 how educational principles mechanisms and theories could be extended or refined based on findings from cognitive neuroscience and 2 which neuroscience principles mechanisms or theories may have implications for educational research and could lead to new interdisciplinary research ventures The contents should be seen as the outcome of the Explorations in Learning and the Brain project In this project we started with a quick scan of the literature that formed the input for an expert workshop that was held in Amsterdam on March 10 11 2008 This expert workshop identified additional relevant themes and issues that helped us to update the quick scan into this final document In this way the input from the participants of the expert workshop listed in Appendix A has greatly influenced the present text We are therefore grateful to the participants for their scholarly and enthusiastic contributions The content of the current volume however is the full responsibility of the authors
