Subjective Well-being in Older Adults Elizabeth Macera, 2005. The purpose of this qualitative descriptive study was to discover how older adults explain their interpersonal relationships while relating their beliefs about successful aging. The participants were drawn from the Alameda County Study, a longitudinal investigation that began in 1965 designed to discover associations between social factors and health. After the 1999 follow-up survey, a questionnaire on successful aging was distributed to participants age 65 or older. Out of this cohort, 51 volunteers were interviewed regarding their concept of what constitutes successful aging. A research assistant conducted face-to-face interviews 60 to 90 minutes in length, which were transcribed verbatim. This project was a secondary analysis of 49 of these interviews. Using NVivo qualitative software, the interviews were coded and themes identified. All but five participants had children. The participants spoke of family relationships as very important to their well-being. The themes identified include freedom from family responsibilities, re-negotiating relationships with children, and re-connecting with spouse. Social comparison was identified as a major mechanism for defining oneself as an older person. In addition, gender differences were identified. A major task for women was balancing work with their family relationships. Men focused more on their relationships with children and spouses after they retired than they did while working. Overall, family relationships remain an important focus for older adults. Clinical and research implications include assisting elders to maintain their roles in the family and recognizing the importance of social comparison in self-definition. The Meaning and Practice of Faith Diarmuid O'Murchu, 2014-02-01. A practical guide for adults who are more interested in being and doing the truth than in doctrinal statements about the truth.

Doing Good, Departing from Evil Carole J. Lambert, 2009. Doing Good: Departing from Evil. Research Findings in the Twenty-First Century emphasizes that goodness must be actively enacted, not abstractly discussed; that evil is present and must be fought; and that in-depth research into problems provides wisdom to proceed with that battle in the new century. Eleven scholars investigate problematic topics and offer potential guidance about racism, propaganda, marital tensions, educational inequities, college dropouts, elders' depression, neglect of the disabled, and even peacemaking between faith-based and secular social work agencies, as well as Israelis and Palestinians. This collection offers no easy answers to complex problems but points the way to potentially positive modes of mending the world and invites readers to share in this challenging task.

The Voice of the Earth Theodore Roszak, 2001-01-01. What is the bond between the human psyche and the living planet that nurtured us and all of life into existence? What is the link between our own mental health and the health of the greater biosphere? In this bold, ambitious philosophical essay, Publishers Weekly historian and cultural critic Roszak explores the relationships between psychology, ecology, and new scientific insights into systems in nature. Drawing on our understanding of the evolutionary, self-organizing universe, Roszak illuminates our rootedness in the greater web of life and explores the relationship between our own sanity and the larger than human world The Voice of the Earth seeks to bridge the centuries old split between the psychological and the ecological with a paradigm which sees the needs of the planet and the needs of the person as a continuum The Earth s cry for rescue from the punishing weight of the industrial system we have created is our own cry for a scale and quality of life that will free us to become whole and healthy This second edition contains a new afterword by the author
