Practical Physiotherapy With Older People:

Practical Physiotherapy with Older People Lucinda Smyth, Rowena Kinsman, Helen Ransome, Patricia Smith, 2013-12-19 Contrary to popular belief practice of physiotherapy with elderly patients is no easy option In addition to grappling with the effects of multipathology it presents problems of accommodating to the patients altering physiological state and the accumulating life events of older age There are challenges of ethics in decision making In therapeutic management it is sometimes hard to know where to begin what to try and when to stop or offer something else The work offers both satisfaction and despair frustration and enormous interest Despite the existence of many specialist textbooks on medicine and physiotherapy it is widely felt there is a place for a basic guide to physiotherapy with elderly people This book aims to provide guidance and insights based on the writers experience as well as from the current literature Good practice must be holistic in its breadth of knowledge and attitude to the individual but meticulous in attention to detail in examination and treatment as for a patient of any age

Practical Physiotherapy with Older People Lucinda Smyth, Rowena Kinsman, Helen Ransome, 2014-09-01 Working with the Mentally Disordered Offender in the Community Phillip J. Vaughan, Douglas Badger, 2013-12-20 In the past forensic psychiatry has been a sub speciality of general psychiatry without its own separate identity However since the mid 1980s there has been a growing interest in the application of community care principles to mentally disordered offenders A new set of attitudes have developed which have enabled the mentally disordered offender to emerge from relative institutional obscurity to a much higher profile in the community Although numerically small in relation to the general psychiatric population forensic patients tend to attract the public's attention by virtue of their greater propensity for troublesome behaviour Such a group needs expert community support in order to maintain an acceptable public face Unfortunately these developments have outstripped the creation of training opportunities for community staff charged with their support and supervision Most community practitioners have had to learn on the job with inadequate support and supervision from senior staff who often have less direct experience of working with this client group than themselves Just such a situation prompted the authors in 1990 to establish a module on Working with Mentally Disordered Offenders in the Community as part of an MA in Social Work at the University of Reading As the course developed it became clear that the topic and content had equal application to other community professionals working in the field

Kingston, 2013-12-19 Spinal Cord Injury Rehabilitation Karen Whalley Hammell, 2013-12-11 Teaching Interpersonal Skills Philip Burnard, 2013-12-14 Occupational Therapy for Stroke Rehabilitation Simon B. N. Thompson, Maryanne Morgan, 2013-12-20 This book is both an introductory text to the rehabilitation of stroke for student therapists and a reference text for qualified therapists The layout of the book reflects these needs with Chapters 1-4 assuming a minimal level of understanding of the material These chapters provide an introduction to the condition of stroke itself the problem

therapists face in assessing and treating stroke patients and therapeutic approaches in occupational therapy Prognosis of stroke is also discussed which is an issue taken up in later chapters concerned with expert systems The use of microcomputers in occupational therapy is discussed throughout the book with particular reference to their direct role during therapy Chapters 5-7 assume a higher level of understanding from the reader although students will find the material useful as an insight into the work of the modern day therapist Chapter 5 addresses the work carried out in the area of biofeedback Chapter 6 introduces the concept and uses of databases and Chapter 7 discusses the versatility of microcomputers especially in the provision of expert systems for the prognosis of stroke

Speech and Communication Problems in Psychiatry, 2013-12-20 This volume represents a painstaking and scholarly introduction to the management of children and adults who have problems of communication related to or in addition to mental disorder It is a relatively unexplored field having received scant attention until recent years but the quality of the work included here gives a clear indication that the area should move from the periphery into a mainstream position in the education and practice of speech therapists Although all students in training receive some teaching in the area of psychiatry it tends to be limited to a brief consideration of the role of the psychiatrist and clinical psychologist very rarely the speech therapist It has been proposed that the education of the speech therapist who intends to enter this difficult but rewarding field should be developed at post graduate level and there are strong arguments given in this volume to support the idea Claims that the field is neglected during initial training are however well founded and this volume should alert those responsible for the education of speech therapists to this deficiency

Occupational Therapy for Orthopaedic Conditions Dina Penrose, 2013-12-20 This book is written with occupational therapy students in mind as a guide to newly qualified occupational therapists and for those returning to work after a break in service Over the years I have been asked many times by newly appointed staff whether I could recommend a book to prepare them for working with orthopaedic patients I hope this small volume will fill the gap in the literature on the subject and that it will be useful as a quick reference book I hope it may also fall into the hands of those in other disciplines and enable them to understand and appreciate the contribution of the occupational therapist to the rehabilitation team This is the era of joint replacement with ever increasing demand for primary and revision surgery Improved implants and improved surgical techniques are constantly being researched Surgery for bone tumour is less mutilating and more hopeful than ever before Operations to release tendons and soft tissue contractures tendon transfers osteotomies spinal fusion joint fusion etc are performed on patients with neurological problems thus improving function and appearance and preventing further deformity These are some examples of procedures in this exciting and fast developing field while hospital beds are occupied for an ever shorter period of time and the potential for occupational therapy is enormous If surgery is to be successful the importance of assessing the patient as a human being cannot be over emphasised Souter 1987 This is precisely the approach of the occupational therapist

Limb Amputation R. Ham,L. T. Cotton,2013-12-20

The majority of amputations in the western world today are due to vascular disease Despite the advances in surgical treatment of this disease particularly by reconstruction it is a sad fact that the number of amputations performed in these countries each year for vascular disease is increasing Most of these amputees are elderly and their life expectancy is short so it is important that the treatment and rehabilitation that they receive is informed appropriate efficient and swift to enable them to return successfully to life in the community for their remaining years Management of this group of patients has proved to be successful only if a multidisciplinary team approach is adopted Until recently in the UK this approach sadly has only been implemented by a few centres However with the publication of the McColl report into the prosthetic and wheelchair service in 1986 interest in the care of the amputee is growing throughout the country This book covers all aspects of amputation from disease and diagnosis to rehabilitation and community discharge with emphasis on the management of the largest group the vascular lower limb amputee A team approach is described and emphasized as being essential for good results and subsequent successful return into the community The role of each of the important disciplines is described in relation to the appropriate part of the rehabilitation phase
