Resisting History Barbara Ladd,2012-01-02 In a major reinterpretation Resisting History reveals that women as subjects of writing and as writing subjects themselves played a far more important role in shaping the landscape of modernism than has been previously acknowledged Here Barbara Ladd offers powerful new readings of three southern writers who reimagined authorship between World War I and the mid 1950s Ladd argues that the idea of a new woman released from some of the traditional constraints of family and community more mobile and participating in new contractual forms of relationality precipitated a highly productive authorial crisis of gender in William Faulkner As new women themselves Zora Neale Hurston and Eudora Welty explored the territory of the authorial sublime and claimed for themselves and other women new forms of cultural agency Together these writers expose a territory of female suffering and aspiration that has been largely ignored in literary histories In opposition to the belief that women s lives and dreams are bound up in ideas of community and pre contractual forms of relationality Ladd demonstrates that all three writers Faulkner in As I Lay Dying Welty in selected short stories and in The Golden Apples and Hurston in Tell My Horse place women in territories where community is threatened or nonexistent and new opportunities for self definition can be seized And in A Fable Faulkner undertakes a related project in his exploration of gender and history in an era of world war focusing on men mourning and resistance and on the insurgences of the masses the feminized others of history in order to rethink authorship and resistance for a totalitarian age Filled with insights and written with obvious passion for the subject Resisting History challenges received ideas about history as a coherent narrative and about the development of U S modernism and points the way to new histories of literary and cultural modernisms in which the work of women shares center stage with the work of men
