Designing for Learning in an Open World Gráinne Conole, 2012-09-21 The Internet and associated technologies have been around for almost twenty years Networked access and computer ownership are now the norm There is a plethora of technologies that can be used to support learning offering different ways in which learners can communicate with each other and their tutors and providing them with access to interactive multimedia content However these generic skills don't necessarily translate seamlessly to an academic learning context Appropriation of these technologies for academic purposes requires specific skills which means that the way in which we design and support learning opportunities needs to provide appropriate support to harness the potential of technologies More than ever before learners need supportive learning pathways to enable them to blend formal educational offerings with free resources and services This requires a rethinking of the design process to enable teachers to take account of a blended learning context

EBOOK: Developing Writers: Teaching and Learning in the Digital Age Richard Andrews, Anna Smith, 2011-07-16 This book takes a fresh look at what it means to learn and develop as a writer in response to concerns on both sides of the Atlantic and elsewhere in the world about standards in writing In this book the authors seek answers to some perennial questions Why does performance in writing tend to lag behind that in reading Are the productive skills of speaking and writing more difficult because they require the learner to make something new What does it mean to develop as a writer This book provides the foundation for developing the teaching of writing It does so by Reviewing and comparing models of writing pedagogy from the last fifty years Discussing the notion of development in depth Developing a new theory and model for writing in the multimodal and digital age Its basic premise is that writing needs to be re-conceived as one crucial component of communication among other modes Andrews and Smith argue that although existing theories have provided insights into the teaching and learning of writing we need to bring such theories up to date in the digital and multimodal age Developing Writers is designed for teachers academics researchers curriculum designers parents and others who are interested in writing development It will also be intended for anyone who is interested in developing their own writing and who wishes to understand the principles on which such development is based Continue the conversation at www.developingwriters.org

Professional Practice and Learning

Nick Hopwood, 2016-01-22

This book explores important questions about the relationship between professional practice and learning and implications of this for how we understand professional expertise Focusing on work accomplished through partnerships between practitioners and parents with young children the book explores how connectedness in action is a fluid, evolving accomplishment with four essential dimensions: times, spaces, bodies, and things Within a broader sociomaterial perspective the analysis draws on practice theory and philosophy bringing different schools of thought into productive contact including the work of Schatzki, Gherardi, and recent developments in cultural-historical activity theory The book takes a bold view suggesting practices and learning are entwined but distinctive phenomena A clear and novel framework is developed based on this idea The argument goes further by demonstrating how new coproductive relationships between professionals and clients can intensify the pedagogic nature of professional work and showing how professionals can support others learning when the knowledge they are working with and sense of what is to be learned are uncertain incomplete and fragile
