Cutler,P.K. Narang,2013-11-11 Clinical trials are the most definitive tool for evaluation of the applicability of clinical investigations The main objective of clinical investigations is to assess the potential value of a therapeutic entity in the treatment or prophylaxis of a disease or a condition It is also deemed necessary at this stage to obtain information regarding the undesirable side effects associated risks and their interrelationship with clinical assessments Most of these clinical investigations conform in some form or fashion to the guidelines adopted by the Food and Drug Administration FDA for a given class of compounds Clinical investigations in the past have not included specific studies in special or subpopulations e g the elderly Because of an ever increasing elderly population newer policies for clinical investigations are now being debated with the recognition of enhanced drug sensitivity in this special population This key research activity can lead not only to improved health care in the elderly but also to control of its costs Second Conference on the Epidemiology of Aging ,1980 Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications United States. Superintendent of Documents,1984 Publication Catalog of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services ,1981 Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents ,1981 Proceedings of the Annual Conference of the Milbank Memorial Fund Milbank Memorial Fund,1960 Research Awards Index ,1978 Proceedings National Communicable Disease Center (U.S.),1958 *Nutrition Education--1972[-1973]. Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs,1973 Modern Pharmaceutics Gilbert S. Banker,Juergen Siepmann,Christopher Rhodes,2002-05-24 Completely revised and expanded throughout Presents a comprehensive integrated sequenced approach to drug dosage formulation design and evaluation Identifies the pharmacodynamic and physicochemical factors influencing drug action through various routes of administration Bibliography of Agriculture ,1974 A Generation of Change Jacob S. Siegel,1993-02-18 A Generation of Change is an exceptional study of the nation s elderly a population that has undergone profound changes in the years since World War II As modern medicine extends the average life span and the baby boom generation begins to approach middle age the number of older Americans is expected to more than double in the next century Currently 75 percent of U S health care expenditures go toward the elderly But as national trends toward early retirement and low birthrate continue an aging American population could face crises in meeting their financial and physical needs According to Jacob S Siegel in A Generation of Change astute public planning must be informed by an understanding of the demographic social and economic characteristics of the older population as it is today and as it will be in the coming years Siegel employs census and survey data from 1950 through the mid 1980s to describe a population constantly shifting in its ethnic and gender composition geographic distribution marital and living arrangements health employment and economic status Surprisingly there is tremendous disparity in the quality of life among the elderly Although their average poverty rate is below that of the general population there are dramatic levels of poverty among older women who are far more likely than men to live alone or in institutions As the elderly progress from the young old to the aged old those over 85 sharp differences emerge as income and employment decrease and degrees of chronic illness increase In addition residential location influences the quality of health care and public assistance available to the elderly an effect that may account for the marked migration of older people to Florida and Arizona Siegel analyzes the full range of characteristics for this heterogeneous population and through comparisons with other age groups as well as with the elderly of the previous decades portrays the crucial influence of social and economic conditions over the life course on the quality of later life With our elderly population growing more numerous and long lived accurate information about them is increasingly essential A Generation of Change will serve as a valuable resource for policymakers seeking more effective solutions in critical areas such as housing long term health care and the funding of Social Security and retirement programs A Volume in the Russell Sage Foundation Census Series The Aging Musculoskeletal System Carl L. Nelson, Anthony P. Dwyer, 1984 Proceedings of the Second Conference on the Epidemiology of Aging Conference on the Epidemiology of Aging, 2D, Bethesda, Md., 1977, J.A. Ross, M. Feinleib, S.G. Rabies in Man and Animals Sudhi Ranjan Garg, 2013-10-23 Rabies is the deadliest zoonotic disease that threatens humans and animals on all continents except Antarctica Asia and Africa are worst affected as more than 95 per cent of rabies associated human deaths occur in these regions India alone bears about 36 per cent of the global human rabies burden Dogs are the main transmitters of rabies that potentially threaten over 3 billion people in Asia and Africa Many developed nations have been able to successfully control dog rabies but continue to face the risk from wildlife including bats Bat rabies is responsible for most human rabies deaths in the United States of America and Canada but has emerged as a public health threat in Australia Latin America and Western Europe as well Despite being vaccine preventable rabies continues to haunt the mankind Poor resources is a major constraint but the factors like low priority attributed to rabies misconceptions in the community about the disease and unsystematic approach for its prevention and control are also responsible for the grim situation Targets have been set for elimination of human and dog rabies in all Latin American countries by 2015 and of human rabies transmitted by dogs in South East Asia by 2020 However the myths prevailing among the people together with inadequate knowledge of the health professionals veterinarians and the civic body staff about the rabies prevention and control strategies might make the task very difficult This book comprising eight chapters elaborates the causation of rabies in man and animals its global epidemiology risk analysis and effective strategies for the management of exposures Proven methods of rabies prevention and control have been discussed in length along with the challenges and ways to overcome the constraints through intersectoral coordination The inclusion of 200 frequently asked questions is a unique feature of the book which may help not only the common people and pet lovers in clearing their doubts about rabies in man and animals also be equally instrumental in updating the knowledge and skills of the public health personnel veterinarians and other professionals Apt illustrations and simple language make the contents of the book easily comprehensible and a reading pleasure Clinical Internal Medicine in the Aged Robert W. Schrier,1982
