Lidz, Lynn Fischer, Robert M. Arnold, 1992-09-24 In few places in American society are adults so dependent on others as in nursing homes Minimizing this dependency and promoting autonomy has become a major focus of policy and ethics in gerontology Yet most of these discussions are divorced from the day to day reality of long term care and are implicitly based on concepts of autonomy derived from acute medical care settings Promoting autonomy in long term care however is a complex task which requires close attention to everyday routines and a fundamental rethinking of the meaning of autonomy This timely work is based on an observational study of two different types of settings which provide long term care for the elderly The authors offer a detailed description of the organizational patterns that erode autonomy of the elderly Their observations lead to a substantial rethinking of what the concept of autonomy means in these settings The book concludes with concrete suggestions on methods to increase the autonomy of elderly individuals in long term care institutions "Code of Massachusetts regulations, 2013" ,2013 Archival snapshot of entire looseleaf Code of Massachusetts Regulations held by the Social Law Library of Massachusetts as of January 2020 "Code of Massachusetts regulations, 2002" ,2002 Archival snapshot of entire looseleaf Code of Massachusetts Regulations held by the Social Law Library of Massachusetts as of January 2020
