Practical Visionaries Women Education And Social Progress 1790 193:

Practical Visionaries Pam Hirsch, Mary Hilton, 2014-07-30 An examination of women educationists in nineteenth and early twentieth century Britain Working with new paradigms opened up by feminist scholarship it reveals how women leaders were determined to transform education in the quest for a better society Previous scholarship has either neglected the contributions of these women or has misplaced them Consequently intellectual histories of education have come to seem almost exclusively masculine This collection shows the important role which figures such as Mary Carpenter Barbara Leigh Smith Bodichon Elizabeth Edwards and Maria Montessori played in the struggle to provide greater educational opportunities for women The contributors are Anne Bloomfield Kevin J Brehony Norma Clarke Peter Cunningham Mary Jane Drummond Elizabeth Edwards Mary Hilton Pam Hirsch Jane Miller Hilary Minns Wendy Robinson Gillian Sutherland and Ruth Watts

Women, Educational Policy-Making and Administration in England Joyce Goodman, Sylvia Harrop, 2002-11-01 The role of women in policy making has been largely neglected in conventional social and political histories This book opens up this field of study taking the example of women in education as its focus It examines the work attitudes actions and philosophies of women who played a part in policy making and administration in education in England over two centuries looking at women engaged at every level from the local school to the state Women Educational Policy Making and Administration in England traces women s involvement in the establishment and management of schools and teacher training the foundation of the school boards women s representation on educational commissions and their rising professional profile in such roles as school inspector or minister of education These activities highlight vital questions of gender class power and authority and illuminate the increasingly diverse and prominent spectrum of political activity in which women have participated Offering a new perspective on the professional and political role of women this book represents essential reading for anybody with an interest in gender studies or the social and political history of England in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Empire,

Education, and Indigenous Childhoods Helen May, Baljit Kaur, 2016-05-06 Taking up a little known story of education schooling and missionary endeavor Helen May Baljit Kaur and Larry Prochner focus on the experiences of very young native children in three British colonies In missionary settlements across the northern part of the North Island of New Zealand Upper Canada and British controlled India experimental British ventures for placing young children of the poor in infant schools were simultaneously transported to and adopted for all three colonies From the 1820s to the 1850s this transplantation of Britain s infant schools to its distant colonies was deemed a radical and enlightened tool that was meant to hasten the conversion of heathen peoples by missionaries to Christianity and to European modes of civilization The intertwined legacies of European exploration enlightenment ideals education and empire building the authors argue provided a springboard for British colonial and missionary activity across the globe during the nineteenth century Informed by archival research and focused on the shared as well as unique aspects of the infant schools colonial experience Empire Education and

Indigenous Childhoods illuminates both the pervasiveness of missionary education and the diverse contexts in which its attendant ideals were applied

Chemistry Was Their Life Marelene F. Rayner-Canham, Geoffrey Rayner-Canham, 2008
 British chemistry has traditionally been depicted as a solely male endeavour However this perspective is untrue the allure of chemistry has attracted women since the earliest times Despite the barriers placed in their path women studied academic chemistry from the 1880s onwards and made interesting or significant contributions to their fields yet they are virtually absent from historical records Comprising a unique set of biographies of 141 of the 896 known women chemists from 1880 to 1949 this work attempts to address the imbalance by showcasing the determination of these women to survive and flourish in an environment dominated by men Individual biographical accounts interspersed with contemporary quotes describe how women overcame the barriers of secondary and tertiary education and of admission to professional societies Although these women are lost to historical records they are brought together here for the first time to show that a vibrant culture of female chemists did indeed exist in Britain during the late 19th and early 20th centuries Women, Education and the Self M. Tamboukou, 2003-09-09 Maria Tamboukou links Foucauldian ideas to feminism and education Its central argument is that the Foucauldian notion of technologies of the self needs to be gendered and contextualized This argument is pursued through a genealogical analysis of autobiographical texts of women educators in the UK at the turn of the nineteenth century This is a new theoretical approach since Foucault's work has proved to be of great interest to feminist scholars but as yet his theories have only intermittently been used in educational feminist work

Progressive Education John Howlett, 2013-09-26 How and why we should educate children has always been a central concern for governments around the world and there have long been those who have opposed orthodoxy challenged perception and called for a radicalization of youth Progressive Education draws together Continental Romantics Utopian dreamers radical feminists pioneering psychologists and social agitators to explore the history of the progressive education movement Beginning with Jean Jacques Rousseau's seminal treatise Emile and closing with the Critical Pedagogy movement this book draws on the latest scholarship to cover the key thinkers movements and areas where schooling has been more than just a didactic pupil teacher relationship Blending narrative flair with thematic detail this important work seeks to chart ideas which whether accepted or not continue to challenge and shape our understanding of education today

Men Teaching Children 3-11 Elizabeth Burn, Simon Pratt-Adams, 2015-11-19 Men Teaching Children 3-11 provides a comprehensive exploration of work experiences of men who teach young children The authors draw on their own research as well as international studies to provide realistic strategies to help to remove barriers in order to develop a more gender balanced teacher workforce Burn and Pratt Adams former primary school teachers who have both experienced these unfair gender practices also trace the historical roots of the gender barriers that have now become embedded within the occupational culture Throughout Men Teaching Children 3-11 the authors argue that primary school teachers should be judged by their teaching talents rather than by the application of biased gender stereotypes and that male and female teachers need to work together to remove these stereotypes from the occupation Women, Gender and Religious Cultures in Britain, 1800-1940 Sue Morgan, Jacqueline de Vries, 2010-06-10

This volume is the first comprehensive overview of women gender and religious change in modern Britain spanning from the evangelical revival of the early 1800s to interwar debates over women's roles and ministry This collection of pieces by key scholars combines cross disciplinary insights from history gender studies theology literature religious studies sexuality and postcolonial studies The book takes a thematic approach providing students and scholars with a clear and comparative examination of ten significant areas of cultural activity that both shaped and were shaped by women's religious beliefs and practices family life literary and theological discourses philanthropic networks sisterhoods and deaconess institutions revivals and preaching ministry missionary organisations national and transnational political reform networks sexual ideas and practices feminist communities and alternative spiritual traditions Together the volume challenges widely held truisms about the increasingly private and domesticated nature of faith the feminisation of religion and the relationship between secularisation and modern life Including case studies further reading lists and a survey of the existing scholarship and with a British rather than Anglo centric approach this is an ideal book for anyone interested in women's religious experiences across the nineteenth and twentieth centuries

The Eighteenth Century American Society for Eighteenth-Century Studies, 2004 In their hundreds of entries and reviews the editorial staff have expanded both the quantity and depth of the work but also re evaluated the subject headings to better reflect the needs of users be they professionals or students General categories include printing and bibliographical studies historical social and economic studies philosophy Arts & Humanities Citation Index , 2001 A Generation of Women Ellen Condliffe Lagemann, 1979 This is a thorough evaluation of the experience shared by a crucial generation of American women widely known but never fully understood the progressive social reformers of the early twentieth century Lagemann portrays five such reformers Grace Dodge Maud Nathan Lillian Wald Leonora O Reilly and Rose Schneiderman all of New York Her work breaks new ground with its analysis of the forces that shaped the development of these women their personalities their careers and their consciousness Lagemann's concern is education not in the limited sense of going to college but education as a lifelong process of interaction that changes the self She deals with the combined influences of pedagogy especially that of parents vocational mentors and colleagues work and feminism Lagemann skillfully demonstrates the effects of social cultural economic and intellectual currents on the education of women in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries The relationships Lagemann shows between education and individual achievement and between education and social change create a new understanding of feminism and progressivism in the early twentieth century
