Second Hand Knowledge An Inquiry Into Cognitive Authority Contributions In Librarianship And Infor:

Second-Hand Knowledge Patrick Wilson, 1983-08-24 The author uses social epistemology to develop the cognitive authority theory The fundamental concept of cognitive authority is that people construct knowledge in two different ways based on their first hand experience or on what they have learned second hand from others What people learn first hand depends on the stock of ideas they bring to the interpretation and understanding of their encounters with the world People primarily depend on others for ideas as well as for information outside the range of direct experience Much of what they think of the world is what they have gained second hand All that people know of the world beyond the narrow range of their own lives is what others have told them However people do not count all hearsay as equally reliable only those who are deemed to know what they are talking about become cognitive authorities Critical Library Instruction Maria T. Accardi, Emily Drabinski, Alana Kumbier, 2010 A collection of articles about various ways of applying critical pedagogy and related educational theories to library instruction Provided by publisher A Changing World Suzanne McMahon, Miriam Palm, Pam Dunn, 2019-12-05 This book first published in 1993 examines how the newest technological developments in information storage and processing impact print oriented libraries Find answers to questions on how libraries can utilize the awesome speed remarkable storage capacity and universal access of the new technology Authoritative contributors provide insight inspirations and practical experience to the three major areas of changing technologies changing information worldwide and strategies and responses of libraries to these rapid changes A Changing World looks at the future of the electronic network medium and how it will provide opportunities for accessing and using information that so far have been unimagined by the print dominated information industry Enlightening chapters explore the feasibility of electronic serials as a realistic replacement for print journals the future of automated serials control systems and the effects of information technologies on libraries as systems and librarianship as a profession Discover timely indications for ten year trends of the globalization of research scholarly information and patents Specific international influences on information are examined including the implications of the European Community internal market for scholarly publishing and distribution the influence of rapid changes in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union on scholarly publishing and scholarly information and serials in politically turbulent Latin American countries Developing a Digital National Library for Undergraduate Science, Mathematics, Engineering and Technology Education National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Science Education, Steering Committee for Developing a Digital National Library for Undergraduate Science, Mathematics, Engineering, and Technology Education, 1998-01-29 In 1996 the National Science Foundation NSF released a report about ways to improve undergraduate science mathematics engineering and technology SME T education One recommendation called for establishing a digital library similar to those that are being constructed for many research communities that would make available electronically a wide variety of materials for improving teaching and learning of SME T The NSF asked the National Research Council to examine the feasibility of and issues associated with establishing such a digital national library In response an NRC steering committee commissioned a series of papers and convened a workshop to consider these issues This resulting book delineates the issues that should be considered and provides recommendations to resolve them prior to committing funds      Information Ecology Thomas H.

Davenport,1997-06-26 According to virtually every business writer we are in the midst of a new information age one that will revolutionize how workers work how companies compete perhaps even how thinkers think And it is certainly true that Information Technology has become a giant industry In America more that 50% of all capital spending goes into IT accounting for more than a third of the growth of the entire American economy in the last four years Over the last decade IT spending in the U S is estimated at 3 trillion dollars And yet by almost all accounts IT hasn t worked all that well Why is it that so many of the companies that have invested in these costly new technologies never saw the returns they had hoped for And why do workers even CEOs find it so hard to adjust to new IT systems In Information Ecology Thomas Davenport proposes a revolutionary new way to look at information management one that takes into account the total information environment within an organization Arguing that the information that comes from computer systems may be considerably less valuable to managers than information that flows in from a variety of other sources the author describes an approach that encompasses the company s entire information environment the management of which he calls information ecology Only when organizations are able to combine and integrate these diverse sources of information and to take them to a higher level where information becomes knowledge will they realize the full power of their information ecology Thus the author puts people not technology at the center of the information world Information and knowledge are human creations he points out and we will never excel at managing them until we give people a primary role Citing examples drawn from his own extensive research and consulting including such major firms as A T explores the infighting jealousy over resources and political battles that can frustrate information sharing underscores the importance of looking at how people really use information how they search for it modify it share it hoard it and even ignore it and the kinds of information they want describes the ideal information staff who not only store and retrieve information but also prune provide context enhance style and choose the right presentation medium in an age of work overload vital information must be presented compellingly so the appropriate people recognize and use it examines how information management should be done on a day to day basis and presents several alternatives to the machine engineering approach to structuring and modeling information Davenport makes explicit what many managers already know in their gut that useful information flow depends on people not equipment In Information Ecology he paves the way for all managers to build a more competitive creative practical information environment for their companies      Helping Scientists to Communicate Well for All Considered: Strategic Science Communication in an Age of Environmental and Health Crises Scott McWilliams,Marcia Allison,Marina Joubert,Ingrid Lofgren,Brianne

Power of Position Robert D. Montoya,2022-05-24 How biodiversity classification with its ranking of species has social and political implications as well as implications for the field of information studies The idea that species live in nature as pure and clear cut named individuals is a fiction as scientists well know According to Robert D Montoya classifications are powerful mechanisms and we must better attend to the machinations of power inherent in them as well as to how the effects of this power proliferate beyond the boundaries of their original intent We must acknowledge the many ways our classifications are implicated in environmental ecological and social justice work and information specialists must play a role in updating our notions of what it means to classify In Power of Position Montoya shows how classifications are systems that relate one entity with other entities requiring those who construct a system to value an entity s relative importance by way of its position within a system of other entities These practices says Montoya are important ways of constituting and exerting power Classification also has very real world consequences An animal classified as protected and endangered for example is protected by law Montoya also discusses the Catalogue of Life a new kind of composite classification that reconciles many local traditional taxonomies forming a unified taxonomic backbone structure for organizing biological data Finally he shows how the theories of information studies are applicable to realms far beyond those of biological classification

Contributions in Librarianship and Information Science ,1986      From Writing To Computers Julian Warner,2002-11-01 We do not need to look far for signs of divided consciousness with regard to books and computers For instance the United Kingdom Data Protection Act 1984 gave British subjects some rights of access to computer held information on themselves but not to paper records From Writing to Computers takes as its central theme the issue of a unifying intellectual principle to connect books and computers Julian Warner uses an approach based on semiotics and also draws on linguistics information science cognitive science philosophy and automata studies Covering a range of topics from the relations between speech and writing to transitions from orality to literacy and claims for a transition to an information society the author aims throughout to render complex ideas intelligible without loss of rigour From Writing to Computers addresses ordinary readers who as social beings and members of political communities are affected by and implicated in significant developments in methods for storing manipulating and communicating information It is also intended for students of the disciplines on which the book draws semiotics information studies linguistics computer science philosophy and psychology      International Journal of Reviews in Library and Information Science ,1984      American Reference Books social and literary changes Within this context censorship is treated as part of a broader professional ideology of book selection Geller treats that ideology in terms of three constant dilemmas of choice populism vs elitism neutrality vs advocacy and freedom vs censorship By exploring the ways in which librarians as public servants have defined their selection policies in terms of the public interest she sheds new light on the complex historical background and shifting social values that underlie contemporary policy alternatives

Foreign Students in American Library Education

Maxine Rochester,1986-02-21 In the first detailed examination of the subject Maxine Rochester surveys the benefits and problems associated with training foreign librarians and information science professionals in the United States First providing background on the general issue of foreign students seeking higher education in the United States the author analyzes historical trends and current developments The library and information sciences student is considered next together with the features of American education that attract foreign students Issues such as sources of funding selection of students admission procedures difficulties experienced by foreign students and their effect on library schools are discussed The impact on the development of library and information services in their home countries is examined in detail

Sex Segregation in Librarianship Betty Jo Irvine,1985-06-14 This incisive work is a detailed examination of intraoccupational sex segregation in librarianship Irvine examines the demographic and career characteristics of male and female library administrators She explores why women have struggled so long for the status and recognition so easily achieved by their male counterparts Included are data on the educational and occupational achievements of parents and spouses the educational background of male and female librarians and their professional affiliations and activities Their career history is considered with regard to mobility patterns middle management and executive positions and mentorship and role models The author also examines related research on women and men in higher education and corporate management Irvine concludes that historically the role models for managerial positions have not favored women but that a significant change has occurred during the last decade
