If in my study of a foreign language I were not pressed by time and if I wanted to have a pleasant and interesting classroom experience, I would gladly sign up for a course following the explorative-creative methodology. If, however, I was concerned with maximum efficiency, I would opt for a different pedagogical treatment relying more on planning and guidance than on exploration and spontaneity.

CONDITIONS FOR SECOND LANGUAGE LEARNING. Bernard Spolsky. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1989. Pp. vii + 272.

The British Association for Applied Linguistics (BAAL) runs an annual Book Prize which is awarded to the author of an outstanding book in applied linguistics. This volume was the winner of the 1990 prize, and I thought it would be interesting to use this review not just to talk about Spolsky's book but also to discuss how it is that a book of this sort comes to win a prize.

As literary prizes go, the BAAL prize is relatively small beer—in comparison, say with the Booker prize for fiction or the Pulitzer prize—but many of the problems that beset these bigger prizes also affect the BAAL. My role for five of the last six prizes has been as non-voting chairman of the judging panel, and this has given me a chance to observe how several different panels of judges have come to agreement (or disagreement, as the case fell out). The views expressed here are personal ones and not those of BAAL.

Obviously, the number of books that qualify for the prize in any one year is huge. Applied linguistics is not a simple, unified field, and the entry qualifications are deliberately left vague and unspecified. In practice, books have to pass through a number of hurdles. The first hurdle is that nominations for the prize come from publishers—any publisher can put forward any number of its own books, but in practice most publishers only put forward one or two nominations. This stage usually results in 20 or so nominations, often varying wildly in topic, style and quality.

For the second stage of the judging process, all these volumes are sent to a short-listing panel. These three people are not expected to read all the books in detail, but they eventually produce a list of eight books that they would like to see short-listed. Surprisingly, it is rare for the short-listing panel to be in complete agreement: hardly any book fails to pick up at least one vote at this stage, but it is equally rare that a book is singled out by all the short-listers. We aim to produce a short-list of four or five books, and in practice, we have been able to do this by short-listing any volume chosen by at least two of the short-listing panel.

Some prizes use the same panel of judges for both short-listing and for detailed assessment. We have found that this does not work terribly well. In an extreme case, a judge could end up judging four volumes, none of which appeared on his own personal short-list, and this undesirable state of affairs is clearly one to avoid. BAAL uses three different judges for the final stage of the judging; usually the previous year's prizewinner agrees to sit on the panel, and some attempt is made to provide for continuity among the judges so as to avoid wild changes of

Simone E. Pfenninger,Julia Festman,David Singleton,2023-05-05 Language fundamentally defines and distinguishes us as humans as members of society and as individuals As we go through life our relationship with language and with learning shifts and changes but it remains significant This book is an up to date resource for graduate students and researchers in second language L2 acquisition who are interested in language learning across the lifespan The main goal is to survey and evaluate what is known about the linguistic cognition affect associations that occur in L2 learning from birth through senescence passing through the stages of childhood adolescence adulthood and third age the extent to which L2 acquisition may be seen as contributing to healthy and active aging the impact of the development of personalized technology enhanced communicative L2 environments and how these phenomena are to be approached scientifically and methodologically The effects of certain specific variables such as gender socio economic background and bilingualism are also analyzed as we argue that chronological age does not determine the positioning of L2 learners across the lifespan age is part of a complex web of social distinctions such as psychological and individual factors that intersect in the construction of a learner's relative status and opportunities Integrating Assessment into Early Language Learning and Teaching Danijela

Prošić-Santovac, Shelagh Rixon, 2019-08-07 The volume unites research and practice on integrating language learning teaching and assessment at preschool and early school age. It includes chapters written by experts in the field who have studied some of the very youngest pre-primary children through to those up to the age of 12 in a variety of private and state contexts across Europe. The collection makes a much needed contribution to the subject of appropriate assessment for children with the focus of many chapters being classroom based assessment particularly formative assessment or the case for developing assessment skills in relation to even the youngest children. As a whole the book provides useful case study insights for policymakers teacher educators researchers and postgraduate students with interest in or responsibility for how children are assessed in their language learning. It also provides practical ideas for practitioners who wish to implement greater integration of assessment and learning in their own contexts Sensitive periods, language aptitude, and ultimate L2 attainment

Gisela Granena, Mike Long, 2013-05-22 Research on second language acquisition SLA has identified language aptitude and age of onset AO i.e. the age at which learners are first meaningfully exposed to the L2 as robust predictors of rate of classroom language learning and level of ultimate L2 attainment in naturalistic settings respectively. It is not surprising therefore that recent years have witnessed a surge of interest in the combination of age and aptitude as a powerful explanatory factor in SLA and central to a viable SLA theory. The chapters in this volume provide new studies and reviews of research findings on age effects bilingualism effects maturational constraints and sensitive periods in SLA the sub-components of language aptitude and the development of new aptitude measures the influence of AO and aptitude in combination on SLA aptitude treatment interactions and the implications of the research findings for language education policy and tailored language instruction Implicit and Explicit Knowledge in Second Language Learning, Testing and Teaching

Rod Ellis, Shawn Loewen, Catherine Elder, Hayo Reinders, Rosemary Erلام, Jenefer Philp, 2009-06-19 The implicit/explicit distinction is central to our understanding of the nature of L2 acquisition. This book begins with an account of how this distinction applies to L2 learning knowledge and instruction. It then reports a series of studies describing the development of a battery of tests providing relatively discrete measurements of L2 explicit/implicit knowledge. These tests were then utilized to examine a number of key issues in SLA: the learning difficulty of different grammatical structures; the role of L2 implicit/explicit knowledge in language proficiency; the relationship between learning experiences and learners' language knowledge profiles; the metalinguistic knowledge of teacher trainees; and the effects of different types of form-focused instruction on L2 acquisition. The book concludes with a consideration of how the tests can be further developed and applied in the study of L2 acquisition Introduction to Instructed Second Language Acquisition Shawn Loewen, 2020-03-09

Now in its second edition Introduction to Instructed Second Language Acquisition continues to present a cohesive view of the different theoretical and pedagogical perspectives that comprise instructed second language acquisition ISLA Loewen provides comprehensive discussions of the theoretical empirical and pedagogical aspects of a range of key issues in ISLA and has added to this edition a comprehensive exploration of the relationship between ISLA research and second language pedagogy Also new is the addition of supporting features including new end of chapter activities points for reflection and discussion questions as well as thoroughly revised content to reflect the most recent research in ISLA This is an essential resource for students new to ISLA or working in second language acquisition more generally

Early Foreign Language Learning and Teaching Marianne Nikolov, Stela Letica Krevelj, 2024-10-15 Over the past six decades the field of teaching modern foreign languages to young learners has come a long way from the early surmises about the advantages of a young start to today's widespread integration of foreign languages into curricula in public and private schools The chapters in this book bring together internationally renowned researchers who have been vocal in establishing early language teaching and learning as an independent area of research and novice voices who represent a new generation of devoted researchers to present a state of the art volume on the topic The authors address key questions about young learner second foreign language L2 FL development methodological issues when conducting research with young learners L2 FL teaching pedagogy language education policy technology enhanced learning and assessment Together the chapters capture the reality of early FL development in the context of a globalized world and will be of great interest to researchers and postgraduate students of SLA and Applied Linguistics specifically in the field of early language development and teaching languages to young learners
