After the War on Crime Mary Louise Frampton, Ian Haney Lopez, Jonathan Simon, 2008-07-01 Since the 1970s Americans have witnessed a pyrrhic war on crime with sobering numbers at once chilling and cautionary Our imprisoned population has increased five fold with a commensurate spike in fiscal costs that many now see as unsupportable into the future As American society confronts a multitude of new challenges ranging from terrorism to the disappearance of middle class jobs to global warming the war on crime may be up for reconsideration for the first time in a generation or more Relatively low crime rates indicate that the public mood may be swinging toward declaring victory and moving on However to declare that the war is over is dangerous and inaccurate and After the War on Crime reveals that the impact of this war reaches far beyond statistics simply moving on is impossible The war has been most devastating to those affected by increased rates and longer terms of incarceration but its reach has also reshaped a sweeping range of social institutions including law enforcement politics schooling healthcare and social welfare The war has also profoundly altered conceptions of race and community It is time to consider the tasks reconstruction must tackle To do so requires first a critical assessment of how this war has remade our society and then creative thinking about how government foundations communities and activists should respond After the War on Crime accelerates this reassessment with original essays by a diverse interdisciplinary group of scholars as well as policy professionals and community activists The volume s immediate goal is to spark a fresh conversation about the war on crime and its consequences its long term aspiration is to develop a clear understanding of how we got here and of where we should go

Public Spaces, Private Lives Henry A. Giroux, 2003 While many of the essays in this book were written before 9 11 they point to a number of important issues such as the commercialization of public life the stepped up militarization racial profiling and the threat to basic civil liberties that have been resurrected since the terrorist attacks Public Spaces Private Lives serves to legitimate the claim that there is much in America that has not changed since 9 11 Rather than a dramatic change what we are witnessing is an intensification and acceleration of the contradictions that threatened American democracy before the tragic events of 9 11 Hence Public Spaces Private Lives offers a context for both understanding and critically engaging the combined threats posed by the increase in domestic militarization and a neoliberal ideology that substitutes market values for those democratic values that are crucial to rethinking what a vibrant democracy would look like in the aftermath of September 11th

War Or Crime? Elspeth Guild, 2009

Making Crime Pay Katherine Beckett, 1999-11-18 Most Americans are not aware that the US prison population has tripled over the past two decades nor that the US has the highest rate of incarceration in the industrialized world Despite these facts politicians from across the ideological spectrum continue to campaign on law and order platforms and to propose three strikes and even two strikes sentencing laws Why is this the case How have crime drugs and delinquency come to be such salient political issues and why have enhanced punishment and social control been defined as the most appropriate responses to these complex social problems Making Crime Pay Law and Order in Contemporary American Politics provides original fascinating and persuasive answers to these questions According to conventional wisdom the worsening of the crime and drug problems has led the public to become more punitive and tough anti crime policies are politicians collective response to this popular sentiment Katherine Beckett challenges this interpretation arguing instead that the origins of the punitive shift in crime control policy lie in the political rather than the penal realm particularly in the tumultuous period of the 1960s
