Recent Advances in Symbiosis Research: Integrative Approaches M. Pilar Francino, Mónica Medina, 2017-02-02 Traditionally symbiosis research has been undertaken by researchers working independently of one another and often focused on a few cases of bipartite host symbiont interactions New model systems are emerging that will enable us to fill fundamental gaps in symbiosis research and theory focusing on a broad range of symbiotic interactions and including a variety of multicellular hosts and their complex microbial communities In this Research Topic we invited researchers to contribute their work on diverse symbiotic networks since there are a large variety of symbioses with major roles in the proper functioning of terrestrial or aquatic ecosystems and we wished the Topic to provide a venue for communicating findings across diverse taxonomic groups A synthesis of recent investigations in symbiosis can impact areas such as agriculture where a basic understanding of plant microbe symbiosis will provide foundational information on the increasingly important issue of nitrogen fixation climate change where anthropogenic factors are threatening the survival of marine symbiotic ecosystems such as coral reefs animal and human health where unbalances in host microbiomes are being increasingly associated with a wide range of diseases and biotechnology where process optimization can be achieved through optimization of symbiotic partnerships Overall our vision was to produce a volume of works that will help define general principles of symbiosis within a new conceptual framework in the road to finally establish symbiology as an overdue central discipline of biological science

Recent Advances in Carbon Capture and Storage Yongseung Yun, 2017-03-08 Carbon capture and storage CCS has been considered as a practical way in sequestering the huge anthropogenic CO₂ amount with a reasonable cost until a more pragmatic solution appears The CCS can work as a bridge before fulfilling the no CO₂ era of the future by applying to large scale CO₂ emitting facilities But CCS appears to lose some passion by the lack of progress in technical developments and in commercial success stories other than EOR This is the time to go back to basics starting from finding a solution in small steps The CCS technology desperately needs far newer ideas and breakthroughs that can overcome earlier attempts through improving modifying and switching the known principles This book tries to give some insight into developing an urgently needed technical breakthrough through the recent advances in CCS research in addition to the available small steps like soil carbon sequestration This book provides the fundamental and practical information for researchers and graduate students who want to review the current technical status and to bring in new ideas to the conventional CCS technologies

Recent Sedimentary Carbonates J.D. Milliman, G. Müller, F. Förstner, 2012-12-06 Few fields of research in the earth sciences have produced as much data and literature as the study of carbonate sediments and rocks The past 25 years in particular have seen a significant increase in studies concerning modern marine and fresh water carbonates With the present worldwide interest in oceanographic research marine carbonates have received the bulk of the attention particularly with respect to shallow water sediments However in terms of the variety of environments compositions and modes of formation non marine carbonates probably encompass a wider spectrum than do marine types Our purpose is to present a two volume treatise on carbonate sediments and rocks both marine and non marine We have confined ourselves to the discussion of modern Holocene environments sediments and components assuming that the compilation of these data will not only be relevant to those working with modern carbonates but will also serve as a necessary reference source for those interested in ancient analogs The first volume by MILLIMAN deals almost exclusively with marine environments while the second volume by MULLER and FORSTNER will concentrate on the non marine carbonates
