

Why did Durkheim study “primitive” society to understand religion?

- Simplicity allows for analysis of “essential” features.
- These societies are different enough from our own experience that we are able to see important features.
- Durkheim looked for “the elements which constitute that which is permanent and human in religion; they form all the objective contents of the idea which is expressed when one speaks of religion in general.”

Religion In Primitive Society:

Religion in Primitive Culture Edward Burnett Tylor, 1970 The author argues that religion had been used to explain things that occurred in the world He saw that it was important for religions to have the ability to explain why and for what reason things occurred in the world For example God or the divine gave us sun to keep us warm and give us light He argues that animism is the essential foundation of all religions Animism is the belief in spirits inhabiting and animating beings or souls existing in things To the author the fact that 19th century religious practitioners continued to believe in spirits showed that they were no more advanced than primitive societies For him this implied that religious practitioners do not understand the ways of the universe and how life truly works because they have excluded science from their understanding of the world By excluding scientific explanation he asserts that contemporary religious practitioners are rudimentary He perceived the modern religious belief in God as a survival of primitive ignorance However he did not believe that atheism was the logical end of cultural and religious development but instead a highly minimalist form of monotheist deism He therefore posited an anthropological description of the gradual elimination of paganism and disenchantment but not secularization Adapted from Wikipedia Religion in Primitive Cultures Wilhelm Dupré, 2011-10-10 Since its founding by Jacques Waardenburg in 1971 Religion and Reason has been a leading forum for contributions on theories theoretical issues and agendas related to the phenomenon and the study of religion Topics include among others category formation comparison ethnophilosophy hermeneutics methodology myth phenomenology philosophy of science scientific atheism structuralism and theories of religion From time to time the series publishes volumes that map the state of the art and the history of the discipline The Meaning and Function of Religion in Primitive Society, Religion in Primitive Society Donald M.
