ABSTRACT

Introduction: In this research, the relationship between five personality dimensions and early emotional relationships with the mediating variable of religious belief in adolescents was investigated. Materials and Methods: The statistical population of this research included high-school teenagers in Hamedan City. Two hundred students were selected using the convenience and snowball sampling method, and the five-factor neo-personality questionnaires, religious orientation, and attitude and tendency towards premarital relationships through space virtualization were studied. Results: Path analysis results showed that among the five personality variables, the agreement had no direct or indirect relationship with emotional relationships. Extraversion and openness were, directly and indirectly, related to emotional relationships. Furthermore, conscientiousness and neuroticism were directly related to emotional relationships. Conclusion: The results showed that the personality dimensions of extroversion and openness has a negative effect on religious belief in early emotional relationships in adolescents. In addition, the reduction of religious belief facilitates the formation of early emotional relationships in adolescents.

Religious Belief Emotional Transformat:

Religious Belief and Emotional Transformation Paul Lauritzen, 1992 Even a cursory reading of contemporary moral philosophy and theological ethics reveals that discussions in these disciplines are often far removed from the actual experiences of individuals struggling to live morally One reason for this is the general silence in most modern ethical theory about the place of emotions in the moral life In this study of the possibility of emotional moral transformation through religious belief and practice Paul Lauritzen breaks this silence and attempts to explain both why emotions have been ignored and why they must be reclaimed Drawing on work in philosophical psychology cultural anthropology and religious studies Lauritzen develops an account of emotions and of the self that allows us to see how a system of religious belief and practice may dramatically transform the emotional life of the believer He argues that emotions are not biologically basic experiences invariant from culture to culture but rather are culturally mediated artifacts that are inescapably tied to communities of belief and practice that sustain particular understandings of the self and its world To this end Lauritzen sketches a social constructivist account of human emotions and analyzes the emotion of anger in detail By comparing anger as it is found in our culture with accounts of anger in certain non Western societies the author demonstrates that emotions are crucially shaped in communities of belief and practice and are thus open to transformation with a change in belief and practice This possibility is explored at length by examining the way in which a framework of retributive justice structures the experience of anger in our culture According to Lauritzen this framework presupposes that the human condition is characterized by limited resources on the one hand and by limited generosity on the other Against this background anger will appear to be a natural retributive response to violations of individuals rights The author concludes the study by showing how given particular religious views about human life and history the framework of retributive justice may be transformed or transcended in ways that dramatically affect the emotional life of the believer BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved Emotional Transformation Therapy Steven R. Vazquez, 2012-11-02 Emotional Transformation Therapy An Interactive Ecological Psychotherapy describes an entirely original approach to psychotherapy that drastically accelerates therapeutic outcomes in terms of speed and long term effects It includes an attachment based interpersonal approach that increases the impact of the therapist client bond and is amplified by the precise use of the client's visual ecology This synthesis is called Emotional Transformation Therapy ETT Steven R Vazquez PhD discusses four techniques that therapeutically harness the client's visual ecology When the client is asked to view a maximally saturated spectral chart of colors visual feedback provides immediate diagnostic information that helps the therapist to regulate emotional intensity or loss of awareness of emotions A second technique offers an original form of directed eye movement that facilitates relief of emotional distress within minutes A third technique uses peripheral eye stimulation to rapidly reduce extreme emotional or physical pain within seconds as well as to access previously unconscious thoughts emotions or memories related to the issue or symptom The fourth technique uses the emission of precise wavelengths colors of light into the client s eyes during verbal processing that dramatically amplifies the effect of talk therapy and changes the brain in profound ways Emotional Transformation Therapy uses theory research and case studies to show how this method can be applied to depression anxiety disorders posttraumatic stress disorder and complex trauma Pre and post brain scans have shown that ETT substantially changes the human brain This method possesses the potential to revolutionize psychotherapy as we know it

The Psychological Roots of Religious Belief M. D. Faber,2010-06-03 In this insightful new study M D Faber whose previous work on the psychology of religion has won widespread critical acclaim offers a comprehensive naturalistic explanation of religious experience from the intertwining perspectives of neuroscience and developmental psychology Faber here argues that belief in God the powerful sensation of his presence and the heartfelt assent to the reality of the supernatural are all produced by the mind brain s inherent tendency to discover in religious narrative a striking memorial echo of its own biological development Although Faber maintains that we are not wired specifically for God as many contend our brain is so constructed as to make us profoundly susceptible to religious myths These myths encourage us to map our early internalized experience onto a variety of supernatural narratives with the figure of the Parent God and his angelic assistants at the center A key point of Faber s analysis is the connection between the onset of infantile amnesia during childhood s later years and the evocative power of religious mythology Although we cannot explicitly recall our earliest interactions with our parents or other caregivers religious narratives can and do jog these implicit emotional memories in an uncanny way which prompts us to accede to religion s central tenet namely that we are in the care of an omnipotent parental provider who watches over us and ministers to our needs In the final analysis religious experience attempts to recapture and to reinstate in an idealized form the symbiotic union of the early parent child relation This pioneering highly original work takes the reader to the neurological psychological bedrock of religious experience

Wittgenstein and Natural Religion Gordon Graham,2014-09-18 Gordon Graham presents a radically innovative study of Wittgenstein s philosophy in relation to the age old impulse to connect ordinary human life with the transcendent reality of God He offers an account of its relevance to the study of religion that is completely different to the standard version of Wittgensteinian philosophy of religion expounded by both its adherents and critics Graham goes on to revitalize the philosophy of true religion an alternative though not a rival to the lively philosophical theology of Plantinga and Swinburne that currently dominates the subject This alternative style of philosophy of religion has equally deep historical roots in the philosophical works of Spinoza Hume Schleiermacher and Mill At the same time it is more easily connected to the psychological sociological and anthropological studies of William James Emile Durkheim Max Weber Mircea Eliade and Mary Douglas Graham uses Wittgenstein s conception of philosophy to argue in favour of the idea that true religion is to be understood as human participation in divine life

Political Transformation and National Identity Change Jennifer

Tedeschi, Lawrence G. Calhoun, 1995-06-20 That personal growth often occurs in people who have experienced traumatic events is an acknowledged but under researched phenomenon This book fills the gap the authors use a cognitive framework to explore this finding focusing upon changes in belief systems reported by trauma survivors Tedeschi and Calhoun weave together literature from fields as diverse as philosophy religion and psychology and incorporate major research findings into the effect of trauma With case examples from the authors research and clinical work information is presented in a manner accessible to clinicians In addition one chapter is written specifically for trauma survivors The Transformation of American Religion Amanda Porterfield, 2001-04-05 As recently as a few decades ago most people would have described America as a predominantly Protestant nation Today we are home to a colorful mix of religious faiths and practices from a resurgent Catholic Church and a rapidly growing Islam to all forms of Buddhism and many other non Christian religions How did this startling transformation take place A great many factors contributed to this transformation writes Amanda Porterfield in this engaging look at religion in contemporary America Religious activism disillusionment with American culture stemming from the Vietnam war the influx of Buddhist ideas a heightened consciousness of gender and the vastly broadened awareness of non Christian religions arising from the growth of religious studies programs all have served to undermine Protestant hegemony in the United States But the single most important factor says Porterfield was the very success of Protestant ways of thinking emphasis on the individual s relationship with God tension between spiritual life and religious institutions egalitarian ideas about spiritual life and belief in the practical benefits of spirituality Distrust of religious institutions for instance helped fuel a religious counterculture the tendency to define spiritual truth against the dangers or inadequacies of the surrounding culture and Protestantism s pragmatic view of spirituality played into the tendency to see the main function of religion as therapeutic For anyone interested in how and why the American religious landscape has been so dramatically altered in the last forty years The Transformation of Religion in America offers a coherent and persuasive analysis Treating Trauma in Christian

Constructs of Meaning and Religious Transformation Herman Westerink, 2013 One of the major trends in the psychology of religion is the growing interest in religious and spiritual meaning making in relation to religious and spiritual transformation processes notably as the aftermath of traumatic experiences and in situations of crisis stress or disease when personal well being is at stake and coping activities and skills are enhanced This volume covers this broad and complex area of interrelated issues The contributions focus on religious and spiritual meaning making and transformation They do not compose an integrated perspective on religious meaning making and transformation processes Rather this volume assembles and presents the current state of research on this complex of issues Thus it not only provides an excellent overview of the psychological study of constructs of meaning and religious transformation but also contributes to our knowledge of contemporary religious life in the context of socio cultural transformation processes pluralisation globalization

Near-Death Experience in Indigenous Religions Gregory Shushan, 2018-07-03 Near death experiences are known around the world and throughout human history They are sometimes reported by individuals who have revived from a period of clinical death or near death and they typically feature sensations of leaving the body entering and emerging from darkness meeting deceased friends and relatives encountering beings of light judgment of one's earthly life feelings of oneness and reaching barriers only to return to the body Those who have NDEs almost invariably understand them as having profound spiritual or religious significance In this book Gregory Shushan explores the relationship between NDEs shamanism and beliefs about the afterlife in traditional indigenous societies in Africa North America and Oceania Drawing on historical accounts of the earliest encounters with explorers missionaries and ethnologists this study addresses questions such as Do ideas about the afterlife commonly originate in NDEs What role does culture play in how people experience and interpret NDEs How can we account for cross cultural similarities and differences between afterlife beliefs Though NDEs are universal Shushan shows that how they are actually experienced and interpreted varies by region and culture In North America they were commonly valorized and attempts were made to replicate them through shamanic rituals In Africa however they were largely considered aberrational events with links to possession or sorcery In Oceania Micronesia corresponded more to the African model while Australia had a greater focus on afterlife journey shamanism and Polynesia and Melanesia showed an almost casual acceptance of the phenomenon as reflected in numerous myths legends and historical accounts This study examines the continuum of similarities and differences between NDEs shamanism and afterlife beliefs in dozens of cultures throughout these regions In the process it makes a valuable contribution to our knowledge about the origins of afterlife beliefs around the world and the significance of related experiences in human history

Miceli, 2016-10-25 Acts of terror are everywhere Not one day goes by without hearing about the latest suicide bomb in Baghdad knife stabbing in Germany or shooting spree in France or in the United States A Christian extremist preacher claims that homosexuals deserve to die because he considers their lifestyle to be sinful groups like ISIS perpetrate genocide against religious minorities and call for global jihad against infidels Buddhist monks in Myanmar persecute the Rohingya for fear that the Muslim minority destroy their country and religion All these actions seem to be somehow religiously motivated where the actors claim to act in accordance with their beliefs In the midst of this spiral of violence seen across traditions and geographical locations there is a pressing need to understand why people act as such in the name of their faith The Global Impact of Religious Violence
