Model Based Computer Vision:

Model Based (intermediate-level) Computer Vision Gunnar Rutger Grape, Stanford University. Computer Science Department, 1973 A system for computer vision is presented which is based on two dimensional prototypes and which uses a hierarchy of features for mapping purposes More specifically one is dealing with scenes composed of planar faced convex objects Extensions to the general planar faced case are discussed The visual input is provided by a TV camera and the problem is to interpret that input by computer as a projection of a three dimensional scene The system proposed and demonstrated in this paper uses perspective consistent two dimensional models prototypes of views of three dimensional objects and interpretations of scene representations are based on the establishment of mapping relationships from conglomerates of scene elements line constellations to prototypes templates The prototypes are learned by the program through analysis of and generalization on ideal instances Modified author abstract

Model Based (intermediate-level) Computer Vision Gunnar Rutger Grape, 1979 A learning-based computer vision approach for the inference of articulated motion Cristóbal Curio, 2012-02-13 Computer vision approaches to human motion analysis have received considerable attention from different research areas over the past couple of years The strong interest is largely due to their various applications in surveillance driver assistance systems human computer interfaces marker less motion capture biomedical engineering and computer graphics This thesis investigates the computational integration of different visual representations for the detection of human bodies and the analysis of their movements in both indoor and unconstrained outdoor environments New image coding schemes are presented in combination with methods from machine learning and dynamic filtering to address issues of complexity robustness and generalization Model-based Vision Hatem N. Knowledge-Based Vision-Guided Robots Nick Barnes, Zhi-Qiang Liu, 2012-12-06 Many robotics researchers consider high level vision algorithms computational too expensive for use in robot guidance This book introduces the reader to an alternative approach to perception for autonomous mobile robots It explores how to apply methods of high level computer vision and fuzzy logic to the guidance and control of the mobile robot The book introduces a knowledge based approach to vision modeling for robot guidance where advantage is taken of constraints of the robot's physical structure the tasks it performs and the environments it works in This facilitates high level computer vision algorithms such as object recognition at a speed that is sufficient for real time navigation The text presents algorithms that exploit these constraints at all levels of vision from image processing to model construction and matching as well as shape recovery These algorithms are demonstrated in the navigation of a wheeled mobile robot CAD Based Programming for Sensory Robots Bahram Ravani, 2012-12-06 This book contains 26 papers presented at the NATO Advanced Research Workshop on CAD Based Programming for Sensory Robots held in IL CIOCCA Italy July 4-6 1988 CAD based robot programming is considered to be the process where CAD Computer Based models are used to develop robot programs If the program is generated at least partially by a programmer interacting for example with a computer graphical display of the robot and its work environment the process is referred to as graphical off line programming On the other hand if the robot program is generated automatically for example by a computer then the process is referred to as automatic robot programming The key element here is the use of CAD models both for interactive and automatic generation of robot programs CAD based programming therefore brings together computer based modeling and robot programming and as such cuts across several disciplines including geometric modeling robot programming kinematic and dynamic modeling artificial intelligence sensory monitoring and so on
