Modelling and Analysis Using Q-GERT Networks A. Alan B. Pritsker,1979 Stochastic Project Networks Klaus Neumann,2012-12-06 Project planning scheduling and control are regularly used in business and the service sector of an economy to accomplish outcomes with limited resources under critical time constraints To aid in solving these problems network based planning methods have been developed that now exist in a wide variety of forms cf Elmaghraby 1977 and Moder et al 1983 The so called classical project networks which are used in the network techniques CPM and PERT and which represent acyclic weighted directed graphs are able to describe only projects whose evolution in time is uniquely specified in advance Here every event of the project is realized exactly once during a single project execution and it is not possible to return to activities previously carried out that is no feedback is permitted Many practical projects however do not meet those conditions Consider for example a production process where some parts produced by a machine may be poorly manufactured If an inspection shows that a part does not conform to certain specifications it must be repaired or replaced by a new item This means that we have to return to a preceding stage of the production process In other words there is feedback Note that the result of the inspection is that a certain percentage of the parts tested do not conform That is there is a positive probability strictly less than 1 that any part is defective Simulation with Visual SLAM and AweSim A. Alan B. Pritsker,Jean J. O'Reilly,1999-03-19 This book presents a process for problem resolution policy crafting and decision making based on the use of modeling and simulation Detailed descriptions of the methods by which Visual SLAM and AweSim version 3 support this process are presented The text is organized into four parts Introduction to Simulation Visual SLAM Network Modeling and AweSim Simulation Analysis and Visual SLAM Discrete Continuous and Combined Modeling Introduction to Intelligent Simulation: The RAO Language Abdelhakim Artiba,V.V.
