Whitley,2012-12-06 This volume of the Sociology of the Sciences Yearbooks stems from our experience that collaborations between non scientists and scientists often initiated by scientists seeking greater social relevance for science can be of major importance for cognitive development It seemed to us that it would be useful to explore the conditions under which such collaborations affect scientific change and the nature of the processes involved This book therefore focuses on a number of instances in which scientists and non scientists were jointly involved in the generation of scientific results at the interface of science and society Despite the considerable variety of cases reported here a number of questions are central Under what conditions do such cooperative processes occur What perceptions of social relevance and what sorts of collaborations with non scientific groups are involved How is this collaboration achieved and through what forums How can insights into its conditions and mechanisms stabilize such cooperations over a longer period of time If they are stabilized do they really affect science or do they mainly function to shield the rest of the science system against external influences These questions are pertinent both to intellectual problems in the sociology of science and to the practical concerns of modern science policies The significance of relations between knowledge producers and knowledge consumers and interest in how these relations affect science and society have changed considerably in recent decades The Impasse Of European Communism Carl Boggs,2019-07-11 The major Communist parties in Western Europe claim a commitment to a democratic road to socialism Often this is a genuine evolution of traditional Marxist Leninist ideology based on the assumption that political and economic power can be obtained through gradual change rather than revolution and through the utilization of democratic processes How well is this strategy working Not very well concludes the author of this book Carl Boggs bases his analysis on a theoretical assessment of the historical and strategic development of Eurocommunism of those parties and movements notably in France Italy and Spain that seek a transition to socialism based on the democratization of existing political and economic structures the so called parliamentary road to socialism After examining the logic and premises of this conception he moves to a critique of the major Eurocommunist theoreticians e g Togliatti Berlinguer Ingrao Napolitano Carrillo Marchais Elleinstein Poulantzas and Claudin He concludes that their ideas fail to resolve the historic Marxist conflict between democratization and rationalization understood here in terms of the drive toward statism bureaucratization and further refinement of the social division of labor under capitalism In fact says Dr Boggs Eurocommunism will probably represent a sort of historical resolution of legitimation and production crises within Mediterranean capitalism that extends rather than overturns hierarchical social and authority relations the capitalist state and the social division of labor Such a resolution might broadly parallel the function of social democracy in Northern Europe in a previous phase of capitalist development
