Neuropharmacology of Polyamines Chris Carter,1994-09-16 Neuroscience Perspectives provides multidisciplinary reviews of topics in one of the most diverse and rapidly advancing fields of life sciences Whether you are a new recruit to neuroscience or an established expert look to this series for one stop sources of the historical physiological pharmacological biochemical molecular biological and therapeutic aspects of chosen research areas Polyamines have had a hard time competing for research interest As anyone who has studied polyamines knows it is possible to observe some sort of polyamine effects in almost any assay system at high concentrations and their generality of action has obviously been a deterrent to intensive research Most of the research is concentrated in the field of cancer and relatively little polyamine research is neuroscience related although in 1926 spermine then known as neuridine was first isolated from brain tissue Further research revealed the existence of uptake and release mechanisms for brain polyamines as seen with other substances more commonly accepted as neurotransmitters Polyamines were also found to lay a regulatory role in cellular calcium homeostasis and to have a metabolism that is deregulated in response to cerebral trauma or ischaemia and finally to modulate the NMDA receptor It was this last effect which tipped the balance in favour of intensive research into polyamines in the brain Despite their ubiquity and demonstrated links with many important physiological regulatory processes there is no coherent hypothesis to explain their presence or role in cellular physiology This book does not provide such a hypothesis but attempts to group the known effects and properties of polyamines as applied to neuroscience and to stimulate interest in this field The polyamines are deliberately treated as neuromodulators or neurotransmitters with an important and specific function in brain This assumption is far from proven but it is hoped that enough interest in this research area will be stimulated which will result in a more precise definition of polyamine function in the future

10 Years of Neuropharmacology Nicholas Barnes, 2020-07-08 I am delighted to write a preface for this Celebratory eBook published in the Specialty Section Neuropharmacology within the journal Frontiers in Pharmacology The eBook delivers a compendium of high impact papers published previously in the journal over the last ten years at the time of writing this collection of 20 papers has been viewed 700k times with over 75k downloads Clearly this Section is delivering a useful resource to the scientific and medical research community The scope of the Specialty Section Neuropharmacology is deliberately broad We encourage submission of high quality and impactful papers in the field of neuropharmacology along the full length of the translational escalator from cellular and molecular investigations to clinical trials I believe this is a real strength of the Section and helps attract a diverse readership that builds the stakeholder network to promote further engagement of the Section with the research community I have no doubt that this has contributed to the growth of the Section with submissions and accepted papers displaying 10 year 2009 2019 compound annual growth rates CAGRs of 58% and 78% respectively Vitaly high quality scientific rigour and impact are fundamental to a paper being accepted and this inevitably leads to a relatively high level of rejection but the transparency of the review process means a fair decision is reached Essential for the handling and considered review of submitted papers the Specialty Section Neuropharmacology has a dynamic cohort of Associate Editors that have been selected carefully 81 at the time of writing that represent the full spectrum of neuropharmacology as well as being widespread geographically around the globe The Associate Editors are supported by nearly 500 Review Editors that ensures informed review indeed the relatively open and interactive review process often adds considerably to the accepted version of the paper As we celebrate the success of Frontiers in Pharmacology and the Specialty Section Neuropharmacology with this eBook we must also recognise and be thankful for the hard work and dedication of those in the Editorial Office their enthusiasm and willingness to help is outstanding and they form an integral component of the overall team that delivers the success I look forward to further success for the Specialty Section Neuropharmacology Happy reading Professor Nicholas M Barnes FBPhS Specialty Chief Editor Neuropharmacology
