Reasons To Remember:

The American College, 1910 Reasons Eric Wiland, 2012-05-17 When we say we act for a reason what do we mean And what do reasons have to do with being good or bad Introducing readers to a foundational topic in ethics Eric Wiland considers the reasons for which we act You do things for reasons and reasons in some sense justify what you do Further your reasons belong to you and you know the reasons for which you act in a distinctively first personal way Wiland lays out and critically reviews some of the most popular contemporary accounts of how reasons can function in all these ways accounts such as psychologism factualism hybrid theories constitutivist theories and finally Anscombean views of reasons Reasons also includes a brief guide to further reading to help readers master this important topic in contemporary writing in ethics and the philosophy of action Georgina's reasons. A passionate pilgrim. A landscape-painter. Rose-Agathe Henry James, 1885 Reasons from Within Alan H. Goldman, 2009-11-26 Do the reasons we have for acting as we do derive from our concerns and desires or are there objective values in the world that we are rationally required to pursue and protect Alan H Goldman argues for the internalist or subjectivist view of practical reasons on the grounds that it is simpler more unified and more comprehensible than the rival objectivist position He provides a naturalistic account of practical rationality in terms of coherence within sets of desires or motivational states and between motivations intentions and actions Coherence is defined as the avoidance of self defeat the defeat of one's own deepest concerns The demand for coherence underlies both practical and theoretical reason and derives from the natural aims of belief and action In clarifying which desires create reasons drawing on the literature of cognitive psychology Goldman offers conceptual analyses of desires emotions and attitudes Reasons are seen to derive ultimately from our deepest occurrent concerns These concerns require no reasons themselves but provide reasons for many more superficial desires In defense of this theory Goldman argues that rational agents need not be morally motivated or concerned for their narrow self interest Objective values would demand such concern They would be independent of our desires but would provide reasons for us to pursue and protect them They would require rational agents to be motivated by them But Goldman argues we are not motivated in that way and it makes no sense to demand that our informed and coherent desires be generally other than they are We need not appeal to such objective values in order to explain how our lives can be good and meaningful Reasons from Within will appeal to anyone interested in the nature of values and reasons particularly students of philosophy psychology and decision theory New York Court of Appeals. Records and Briefs. New York (State). Court of Appeals., 1946 Volume contains Matter of Mindheim Matter of Mindheim Matter of Mindheim Matter of Miranda v Tead Matter of Miranda v Tead Matter of Miranda v Tead Matter of Miranda v Tead Matter of Miranda v Tead Mnich v American Radiator Co Mnich v American Radiator Co Moral Reason Julia Markovits, 2014-03-07 What is it to have a reason to do something is one sort of question what is it we have reason to do is another These questions are often explored separately But our answers to them may not be independent what reasons are may have implications for what reasons there are So the door is opened to a troubling tension the account of what reasons are that is most plausible in its own right could entail a view of what we have reason to do that is independently implausible In fact it looks like this is the case In the first half of Moral Reason Julia Markovits develops and defends a version of a desire based internalist account of what normative reasons are But does that account entail that there are no moral reasons that apply to all of us regardless of what we happen to desire It may look obvious that it does that a bullet must be bitten somewhere If what we have reason to do depends on what we antecedently desire corrected only for misinformation and procedural irrationalities and if desires differ from person to person there seems to be no basis for assuming that everyone has reason to be moral But the bullet may yet be avoided In the second half of the book Markovits shows how we may do so building on Kant s argument for his formula of humanity to provide an internalist defense of universal moral reasons In doing so she provides a more satisfying answer to the age old question why be moral
