Recession Crime And Punishment:

Recession, Crime and Punishment Steven Box, 1987-08-21 We are often told that unemployment is no excuse for committing crimes. It certainly does not follow as many in government would have us believe that crime is unrelated to social conditions. Examining a mass of evidence from Great Britain, the United States, Canada, and other industrialised countries, Steven Box shows how criminal activity increased with unemployment, poverty, and sharpened competition between firms. He demonstrates that corporate as well as individual crime is affected by the experience of recession and that changing pressures and opportunities alter the character and distribution of deviance as well as increasing its incidence. Although deterioration in material circumstances does lead to more crime, however, it does not alone account for the massive increase in prison populations or increasingly repressive systems of social control. These developments, the author argues, flow more from government attempts to restructure the labour force and the natural reaction of minor state officials like judges, police, and probation officers to the changing logic of their situations.

Understanding Crime Susan Guarino-Ghezzi, A. Javier Trevino, 2014-09-25 Explores the interdisciplinary nature and potential of the field of criminology, covering the fields of sociology, economics, psychology, biology, philosophy, and religious studies. The conclusion demonstrates various theoretical approaches for policy development and discusses opportunities for incorporating academic contributions into the political process.

Criminology and Political Theory Dr Anthony Amatrudo, 2009-07-09 A lucid, sophisticated, and timely vindication of the importance of Marxist, feminist, and other radical perspectives on the state and political economy to the analysis of crime control and justice. It offers a valuable guide to issues of political philosophy for students and teachers of criminology, critically deconstructing the taken-for-granted categories of law and criminal justice. Professor Robert Reiner, London School of Economics, UK. This clear and concise book sets out the relationship between political theory and criminology. It critically analyzes key theories and debates within criminology and addresses the major political ideas that lie beneath them. Organized around key criminological concepts and issues, the book covers power and ideology, the nature of the state, social control and policing, punishment, economics, and criminal activity, morality. The book has been carefully developed to support practical teaching and learning and contains chapter summaries, further reading, and a comprehensive glossary which combine to provide a full understanding of the themes.

Law, Ideology and Punishment A.W. Norrie, 2012-12-06 This book is about Kantianism in both a narrow and a broad sense In the former it is about the tracing of the development of the retributive philosophy of punishment into and beyond its classical phase in the work of a number of philosophers one of the most prominent of whom is Kant In the latter it is an exploration of the many instantiations of the Kantian ideas of individual guilt responsibility and justice within the substantive criminal law On their face such discussions may owe more or less explicitly to Kant but in their basic intellectual structure they share a recognisably common commitment to certain ideas emerging from the liberal Enlightenment and embodied within a theory of criminal justice and punishment which is in this broader sense Kantian The work has its roots in the emergence in the 1970s and early 1980s in the United States and Britain of the justice model of penal reform a development that was as interesting in terms of the sociology of philosophical knowledge as it was in its own right Only a few years earlier I had been taught in undergraduate criminology which appeared at the time to be the only discipline to have anything interesting to say about crime and punishment that classical criminology that is Beccaria and the other Enlightenment reformers who had been colonised as a school within criminology had died a major death in the 19th century from which there was no hope of resuscitation
