Religious Fundamentalism In Developing Countries:

Religious Fundamentalism in Developing Countries Santosh C. Saha, Thomas K. Carr, 2001-03-30 Using a variety of methodological approaches this timely book offers a thorough examination of the impact and implications of religious fundamentalism in developing nations The authors explore why and how adherence to fundamentalist principles affects the social political and religious development of such countries as Israel India Pakistan Bangladesh Egypt and the Philippines One of the most significant contributions of this volume is that it challenges the assumption that fundamentalism in developing countries is based solely on religious motivations The authors maintain that fundamentalism of this sort is motivated by both religious and political convictions This combination of religious and political motivations allows fundamentalism to exert a tremendous influence on the public policies of these developing nations As the social fabric of such countries continues to be developed it is clear that fundamentalism will continue to play a significant and potentially dangerous role

Competing Fundamentalisms Sathianathan Clarke, 2017-03-29 Why do certain groups and individuals seek to do harm in the name of God While studies often claim to hold the key to this frightening phenomenon they seldom account for the crucial role that religious conviction plays not just in radical Islam but also in the fundamentalist branches of the world's two other largest religions Christianity and Hinduism As the first book to examine violent extremism in all three religions together Competing Fundamentalisms draws on studies in sociology psychology culture and economics while focusing on the central role of religious ideas to paint a richer portrait of this potent force in modern life Clarke argues that the forces of globalization fuel the aggression of these movements to produce the competing feature of religious fundamentalisms which have more in common with their counterparts across religious lines than they do with the members of their own religions He proposes ways to deescalate religious violence in the service of peacemaking Readers will gain important insights into how violent religious fundamentalism works in the world's three largest religions and learn new strategies for promoting peace in the context of contemporary interreligious conflict

Ethnicity and Sociopolitical Change in Africa and Other Developing Countries Santosh C. Saha, 2008-03-07 This edited collection of essays answers a basic question posed by contemporary discourse on state building How might people's identification with a particular ethnic group matter Essays in this book use an integrated multi disciplinary approach to understanding regional and local community culture and socio political development in developing countries especially in Sub Saharan Africa to argue that the state as well as civil society confers on cultural differences a legitimacy that can be achieved in no other way but by positive cooperation Contributors from different countries look at local patterns in state building and modernization as they have unfolded over the course of the last fifty years They claim that the people and ethnic groups in most developing countries adhere to a concept of popular sovereignty that testifies that aspects of positive and moral ethnicity can contribute to social change as in China economic development as in India or in a democratization process as in Rwanda and Burundi The eventual methodological assumption made by these essays presumes that ethnic conflicts in such countries as Cyprus Turkey India and Rwanda have no moral sanction ethnicity has not assumed a political ideology One conclusion reached by the contributors is that some form of accommodation between opposing ethnically diversified groups as well as between state and ethnic elements is feasible

Religion and Gender in the Developing World Tamsin Bradley, 2010-12-07 Faith based development organizations have become a central part of the lives of the women of rural Rajasthan and have come to represent an important aspect of both individual and collective identities And yet religious teachings continue to be used to exclude women from public decision making forums and render them vulnerable to increasing levels of domestic violence In a unique multi disciplinary approach combining a range of subjects Tamsin Bradley provides a unique study of the role of development organizations and faith organizations in the lives of women in rural Rajasthan Faith and religion emerge as being able to afford a space within which women are able to interact with one another and create an identity for themselves However faith proves not just to be a positive sphere in which women are able to assert themselves Its ambiguity becomes clear as the author explains that religious women often find their visions of social justice and equality marginalised by the dominance of male leadership Nevertheless Bradley also look at how religious women challenge male dominance drawing on their beliefs and practices in creative and innovative ways Thus a complex picture emerges and including insights from gender studies and anthropology Bradley argues that religion can both empower and disempower local communities and the women who live within them By analysing development through the prism of gender studies Bradley highlights the complex nature of power relationships that are at the very heart of development agendas and organizations and offers an invaluable contribution to the understanding of the nexus of varied disciplines in the analysis of women and religion in Rajasthan This book will be of interest to students reseachers and policy makers involved in various fields including those of Development Studies Religion Gender Studies and Social Anthropology
