Medicine and Healing Practices in Ancient Egypt Rosalie David,Roger Forshaw,2023-12-01 Medicine and Healing Practices in Ancient Egypt provides a new perspective on healthcare and healing treatments in Egypt from the Predynastic to the Roman periods Rather than concentrating exclusively on diseases and medical conditions as evidenced in ancient sources it provides a people focused perspective asking what it was like to be ill or disabled in this society Who were the healers To what extent did disease occurrence and treatment reflect individual social status As well as geographical environmental and dietary factors which undoubtedly affected general health some groups were prone to specific hazards These are discussed in detail including soldiers experience of trauma wounds and exposure to epidemics and conditions blindness sand pneumoconiosis trauma and limb amputations resulting from working conditions at building and other sites. Methods of diagnosis and treatment were derived from special concepts about disease and medical ethics. These are explored as well as the individual contributions and professional interactions of various groups of healers and carers. Medical training and practice occurred in various locations including temples and battlefields; these are described as well as the treatments and equipment that were available. Ancient writers generally praised the Egyptian healers' knowledge, expertise, and professional relationship with their patients. A brief comparison is drawn between this approach and those prevailing elsewhere in Mesopotamia, Greece, and Rome. Finally, Egypt's legacy transmitted through Greek, Roman, and Arabic sources is confirmed as the source of some principles and practices still found in modern Western medicine. Combining information from the latest studies on human remains and the authors' biomedical research, this book brings the subject up to date, enabling a wide readership to access often scattered information in a fascinating synthesis.

Mediterranean Collections in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand Candace Richards, Elizabeth Minchin, 2025-04-04. This volume brings together academics and museum professionals responsible for ancient Mediterranean collections across Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand to report on their collections, legacies, and their ongoing value for research, education, and community engagement in the twenty-first century. An introductory chapter offers an overview of the themes that unite these Mediterranean collections: their colonial legacies, their more recent history, and the network of scholars who have fostered their development. Subsequent chapters offer thematic case studies from the perspective of curators, museum professionals, educators, and researchers working with collections across Australasia. They explore several themes, including museum archaeology, provenance studies, pedagogy, and participatory programming and engagement, and they address two issues that are of interest to everyone who engages with museum collections today: restitution and the ethical management and display of human remains. Taken together, these contributions situate the region's collections on a global scale, highlighting their continued relevance in the present and for the future. The volume includes a distribution guide to all known ancient Mediterranean collections in Australia and Aotearoa New Zealand, a much-needed resource for students, provenance researchers, and museum professionals. This volume will be of interest to researchers in Mediterranean archaeology and related disciplines, to museum studies scholars, and postgraduate students, and to a general audience.
