Senate. Committee on Government Operations. Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations,1974 Mental Disability And the European Convention on Human Rights Peter Bartlett,Oliver Lewis,Oliver Thorold,2007 Mental disability has come of age as a subject of concern under the European Convention on Human Rights It was only in 1979 that the first significant decision of the ECHR was decided on the subject and after that cases were relatively few for many years It is only recently that this has begun to change This volume provides an account of where the law currently stands and speculation as to how it may develop The initial chapters deal with substantive aspects of Convention rights including issues of detention in institutions conditions within institutions medical treatment problems associated with guardianship and others The final two chapters move to discuss the practicalities of litigation The book concludes with a number of appendices primarily the primary international legal materials of relevance to mental disability rights under the ECHR and the relevant recommendations and principles from the Council of Europe It is hoped that this volume in addition to shedding light on where the law currently stands will offer practical guidance to lawyers concerning the mechanics of representing people with mental disabilities Designing for Therapeutic Environments David Canter,Sandra Canter,2025-09-01 Originally published in 1979 Therapeutic Environments brings together a set of previously unpublished accounts of studies by internationally recognized experts in North America and Britain of the full range of places which are designed to facilitate the processes of healing caring and helping The papers have been collected and edited by David Canter an Environmental Psychologist who has published a number of books on people and buildings and Sandra Canter a Clinical Psychologist who has published previously on the determinants of personality and the effect of vitamins During the previous two decades there had been a growing outcry in both Europe and North America against the environments in which society housed those undergoing treatment or requiring care and attention Clearly institutions should not make their inmates worse and the consensus of opinion at the time was that if they were not actually making people worse the caring buildings certainly were not helping to make them better In response to this awakened desire to produce physical environments which contributed positively to the therapeutic process this book drew together specially commissioned papers written by those who had been actively involved in studying or creating therapeutic environments both in Britain and America Forming a unique overview of the present state of thought and action in this increasingly important area of design Therapeutic Environments was an important work of reference not only for clinical community and environmental psychologists but for all social work groups and aware architects with an active interest in the planning and operation of environments with a specialist caring responsibility This book is a re issue originally published in 1979 The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re publication Surveillance Practices and Mental Health Suki Desai,2021-12-30 This book examines how CCTV cameras expose the patient body inside the mental health ward especially the relationship between staff and patients as surveillance subjects A key aspect of the book is that existing surveillance literature and mental health literature have largely ignored the influence of CCTV cameras on patient and staff experiences inside mental health wards Research findings for this book suggest that camera use inside mental health wards is based on a perception of the violent nature of the mental health patient This perception not only influences ethical mental health practice inside the ward but also impacts how patients experience the ward It is not known how and why CCTV camera use has expanded to its uses inside mental health wards These include not only communal areas of the ward but also patient bedrooms The research therefore examines how and why camera technology was introduced inside three Psychiatric Intensive Care Mental Health Units located in England UK Aimed at both undergraduate and postgraduate students this book will appeal to sociology mental health and surveillance studies students as well as practitioners in mental health nursing caseworkers and social caregivers
