Postcolonial Moves Medieval Through Modern:

Postcolonial Moves P. Ingham, M. Warren, 2015-12-17 Much theoretical and historical work engaged with the question of the postcolonial is built upon an imagined unified premodern Middle Ages in Europe One of the results of this has been that in recent years scholars in medieval and early modern studies have been critically assessing the uses of postcolonial and subaltern theoretical perspectives in their fields and considering what their periods have to say to postcolonial theorists This book offers a series of original essays that explore with specificity the methodological textual cultural and historiographic moves required for postcolonial engagements with premodern times

Postcolonial Approaches to the European Middle Ages Ananya Jahanara Kabir, Deanne Williams, 2005-03-10 This collection of original essays is dedicated to exploring the intersections between medieval and postcolonial studies Ranging across a variety of academic disciplines from art history to cartography and from Anglo Saxon to Hispanic studies this volume highlights the connections between medieval and postcolonial studies through the exploration of a theme common to both areas of study translation as a mechanism of and metaphor for cultures in contact confrontation and competition Drawing upon the widespread medieval trope of the translation of empire and culture this collection engages the concept of translation from its most narrow lexicographic sense to the broader applications of its literal meaning to carry across It carries the multilingual multicultural realities of medieval studies to postcolonial analyses of the coercive and subversive powers of cultural translation offering a set of case studies of translation as the transfer of language culture and power

Postcolonising the Medieval Image Eva Frojmovic, Catherine E. Karkov, 2017-03-16 Postcolonial theories have transformed literary historical and cultural studies over the past three decades Yet the study of medieval art and visualities has in general remained Eurocentric in its canon and conservative in its approaches Postcolonising as the eleven essays in this volume show entails active intervention into the field of medieval art history and visual studies through a theoretical reframing of research This approach poses and elicits new research questions and tests how concepts current in postcolonial studies such as diaspora and migration under represented artistic cultures accented art making displacement intercultural versus transcultural hybridity presence absence can help medievalists to reinvigorate the study of art and visuality Postcolonial concepts are deployed in order to redraft the canon of medieval art thereby seeking to build bridges between medievalist and modernist communities of scholars Among the varied topics explored in the volume are the appropriation of Roman iconography by early medieval Scandinavian metalworkers multilingualism and materiality in Anglo Saxon culture the circulation and display of Islamic secular ceramics on Pisan churches cultural negotiation by Jewish minorities in Central Europe and the Iberian peninsula Holy Land maps and medieval imaginative geography and the uses of Thomas Becket in the colonial imaginary of the Plantagenet court

Knowledge Nadia R. Altschul, 2024-05-31 Geographies of Philological Knowledge examines the relationship between medievalism and colonialism in the nineteenth century Hispanic American context through the striking case of the Creole Andr s Bello 1781 1865 a Venezuelan grammarian editor legal scholar and politician and his lifelong philological work on the medieval heroic narrative that would later become Spain s national epic the Poem of the Cid Nadia R Altschul combs Bello s study of the poem and finds throughout it evidence of a coloniality of knowledge Altschul reveals how during the nineteenth century the framework for philological scholarship established in and for core European nations France England and especially Germany was exported to Spain and Hispanic America as the proper way of doing medieval studies She argues that the global designs of European philological scholarship are conspicuous in the domain of disciplinary historiography especially when examining the local history of a Creole Hispanic American like Bello who is neither fully European nor fully alien to European culture Altschul likewise highlights Hispanic America s intellectual internalization of coloniality and its understanding of itself as an extension of Europe A timely example of interdisciplinary history interconnected history and transnational study Geographies of Philological Knowledge breaks with previous nationalist and colonialist histories and thus forges a new path for the future of medieval studies The Ashgate Research Companion to Monsters and the Monstrous

Early Royal Society Cristina Malcolmson, 2016-04-01 Arguing that the early Royal Society moved science toward racialization by giving skin color a new prominence as an object of experiment and observation Cristina Malcolmson provides the first book length examination of studies of skin color in the Society She also brings new light to the relationship between early modern literature science and the establishment of scientific racism in the nineteenth century Malcolmson demonstrates how unstable the idea of race remained in England at the end of the seventeenth century and yet how extensively the intertwined institutions of government colonialism the slave trade and science were collaborating to usher it into public view Malcolmson places the genre of the voyage to the moon in the context of early modern discourses about human difference and argues that Cavendish's Blazing World and Swift's Gulliver's Travels satirize the Society's emphasis on skin color

Black Legacies Lynn T. Ramey, 2014-09-02 Black Legacies looks at color based prejudice in medieval and modern texts in order to reveal key similarities Bringing far removed time periods into startling conversation this book argues that certain attitudes and practices present in Europe's Middle Ages were foundational in the development of the western concept of race Using historical literary and artistic sources Lynn Ramey shows that twelfth and thirteenth century discourse was preoccupied with skin color and the coding of black as evil and white as good Ramey demonstrates that fears of miscegenation show up in all medieval European societies She pinpoints these same ideas in the rhetoric of later centuries Mapmakers and travel writers of the colonial era used medieval lore of monstrous peoples to question the humanity of indigenous New World populations and medieval arguments about humanness were employed to justify the slave trade Ramey even analyzes how race is explored in films set in medieval Europe revealing an enduring fascination with the Middle Ages as a touchstone for processing and coping with racial conflict in the West today

LITERARY TRANSLATION IN ENGLISH General Editors Peter France and Stuart Gillespie This groundbreaking five volume history runs from the Middle Ages to the year 2000 It is a critical history treating translations wherever appropriate as literary works in their own right and reveals the vital part played by translators and translation in shaping the literary culture of the English speaking world both for writers and readers It thus offers new and often challenging perspectives on the history of literature in English As well as examining the translations and their wider impact it explores the processes by which they came into being and were disseminated and provides extensive bibliographical and biographical reference material Volume 1 of The Oxford History of Literary Translation in English originates with what medievalists have long known that virtually everything written in the Middle Ages in English can be regarded one way or another as a translation and that medieval understandings of what constitutes literature were significantly more generous than many modern ones It uses modern as well as medieval understandings of translation to inform its discussions the two understandings have a great deal in common and it aims to situate medieval translation in English as fully as possible in its various cultural contexts this includes in particular the complicated inter relations of translation throughout the period into Latin and for the Middle English period of translation in French Since it also understands the Middle Ages of its title as including the first half of the sixteenth century it studies what has survived of nearly a thousand years of translation activity in England The Sultan Speaks L. McJannet, 2006-10-16 The first study of English historical plays about the Turks using works in Greek Arabic and Turkish Drawing on Bakhtin s concept of the dialogic McJannet shows that instead of adverse authorial commentary playwrights such as Marlowe and Fulke Greville use dialogue and commentary to enhance the sultan s stature and mitigate his negative acts Hercules and the King of Portugal Dian Fox-Hindley, 2019 Hercules and the King of Portugal investigates how representations of masculinity figure in the fashioning of Spanish national identity scrutinizing ways that gender performances of two early modern male icons Hercules and King Sebastian are structured to express enduring nationhood The classical hero Hercules features prominently in Hispanic foundational fictions and became intimately associated with the Hapsburg monarchy in the early sixteenth century King Sebastian of Portugal 1554-78 both during his lifetime and after his violent death has been inserted into his own land s charter myth even as competing interests have adapted his narratives to promote Spanish power The hybrid oral and written genre of poetic Spanish theater as purveyor and shaper of myth was well situated to stage and resolve dilemmas relating both to lineage determined by birth and performance of masculinity in ways that would ideally uphold hierarchy Dian Fox s ideological analysis exposes how the two icons are subject to political manipulations in seventeenth century Spanish theater and other media Fox finds that officially sanctioned and sometimes popularly produced narratives are undercut by dynamic social and gendered processes Hercules and Sebastian slip outside normative discourses and spaces to enact nonnormative behaviors and unproductive masculinities The Idea of the Antipodes Matthew Boyd Goldie, 2010-01-31 A study that uses critical theory to
