Building Democracy in Contemporary Russia Sarah L. Henderson, 2018-07-05 Can foreign donors help build new democracies In the 1990s public and private organizations such as USAID and the Soros Foundation poured huge amounts of money and expertise into Russia to help build the dream of a vibrant democratic society Sarah L Henderson argues that despite the altruistic intentions of foreign assistance agencies and domestic activists foreign aid designed to spur civic growth has had unintended consequences Drawing on extensive field work survey research and work experience for several funding agencies in Moscow in the late 1990s Henderson focuses on donor efforts to support the emerging community of nongovernmental organizations and in particular on efforts to build a functioning women s movement in Russia Her intimate knowledge of Russia s growing NGO community informs a worrisome finding foreign aid has made a tremendous difference but not in altogether expected or positive ways New Russian civic groups serve either the needs of an indigenous clientele or the demands of the foreign aid bureaucracy but rarely both Henderson s research and experience show that while aid has kept a fledgling civic community alive it is a civic community that is disconnected from its own domestic audience The book suggests that large flows of foreign aid have in some ways damaged the long term prospects for democratization in Russia

Civil Society and Gender Justice Karen Hagemann, Sonya Michel, Gunilla Budde, 2008-10-01 Civil society and civic engagement have increasingly become topics of discussion at the national and international level The editors of this volume ask does the concept of civil society include gender equality and gender justice Or to frame the question differently is civil society a feminist concept Conversely does feminism need the concept of civil society This important volume offers both a revised gendered history of civil society and a program for making it more egalitarian in the future An interdisciplinary group of internationally known authors investigates the relationship between public and private in the discourses and practices of civil societies the significance of the family for the project of civil society the relation between civil society the state and different forms of citizenship and the complex connection between civil society gendered forms of protest and nongovernmental movements While often critical of historical instantiations of civil society all the authors nonetheless take seriously the potential inherent in civil society particularly as it comes to influence global politics They demand however an expansion of both the concept and project of civil society in order to make its political opportunities available to all
