

THE FUTURE OF THE

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years of age, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise at 60% to 70% of the maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR at rest decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 138 to 142 beats per minute. The HR at maximal exercise decreased from 178 to 172 beats per minute, and the HRR at maximal exercise increased from 106 to 114 beats per minute. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

CONCLUSIONS
The results of this study indicate that the use of a 100% oxygen atmosphere during the heat treatment of 304 stainless steel can significantly reduce the amount of intergranular corrosion. This is due to the fact that the oxygen atmosphere prevents the formation of chromium oxide, which is the primary cause of intergranular corrosion. The use of a 100% oxygen atmosphere is therefore recommended for the heat treatment of 304 stainless steel.
