Whenever their religions are not so contrasted they are usually treated in isolation from each other the religion of Israel Zoroastrianism Judaism Christianity Hinduism Jainism and Buddhism Dr Ling however stresses that there is considerable overlap and interpenetration between the two types and areas and that it is important to see the historical inter relation between these religions and to observe how during given periods of history there are parallel developments or significant divergences He covers the period 1500 B C to the present time providing an outline of the development of Asian and European religious traditions and institutions and discussing the social and economic factors involved in the development of religious traditions although he shows that such factors alone do not account for the religious life of man Dr Ling goes on to interpret the contemporary significance of these religions and their potential for the future life of humanity He suggests that the present stage of religious advance is characterised by open endedness towards the future not all religions exhibit this character but none has yet exhausted the possibilities of development This book is intended for use as an introduction to the study of religion Although reference is made in the text to sources of further information the book can be used without reference to them

The World's Parliament of Religions Richard Hughes Seager, 1995 The 1893 World's Parliament of Religions was much more than a religious assembly It was conceived as a presentation of the major religious forces at work in the late nineteenth century The goal of the Parliament was to unite all religion against irreligion and many observers celebrated that spirit Some saw the Parliament as a sign of the coming fulfillment of missionaries hope to evangelize the world but others saw it as a disaster for missionaries Some thought it proved the superiority of Christianity others saw a victory for the religions of the East Some thought the Parliament pointed toward the coming unity of all Christians while for others it seemed a revelation of the forces dividing Christendom Seager's beautifully fashioned narrative explores this fascinating event in all its complexities and establishes it as truly a watershed event in the emergence of a more pluralistic religious culture in America participation in a monastic conference in Asia led to his premature accidental death. He discoursed on equal terms with the Dalai Lama and extracts from their interviews appear in this book. The introduction brings together extracts from Merton's Asian Journal, Hinduism and varieties of Buddhism and other short works on Eastern religions written in the last few years of his life. They all combine to demonstrate the breadth of vision that is such an integral part of Merton's lasting appeal: his quest for a deeper unity underlying apparent fragmentation. They might be regarded as steps toward the great book on monasticism that Merton might have written but never did. As they stand, they provide Merton's essential definitions of the religions that so interested him in the last years of his life and of which he became a skilful Western interpreter.

Rudolf Otto and the Foundation of the History of Religions Yoshitsugu Sawai, 2022-02-10. This book provides an up-to-date treatment of Rudolf Otto and his work, placing him in the context of comparative religion, theology and the philosophy of religion. Yoshitsugu Sawai shows how Otto has three faces: the Lutheran Theologian, the Philosopher of Religion and the Comparative Religionist. The book also shows how of these Otto saw himself primarily as a Lutheran Theologian and provides an account of Otto's engagement with India and the centrality that Hindu theology had on his thinking. In Otto's theory of religion, his well-known concepts including the wholly other and the numinous constitute a multiple structure of meaning. For example, his concept of the wholly other, das ganz Andere, no doubt has the meaning of God in his Christian theological studies. At the same time, however, from the perspective of comparative religion or the phenomenology of religion, this same term semantically implies the ultimate reality of other religious traditions: Brahman and God Isvara in Hindu religious tradition as well as God in Christianity.

Human Rights in Eastern Civilisations Surya P. Subedi, 2021-03-26. Based on the author's first-hand experience as a UN Special Rapporteur, this thought-provoking and original book examines the values of Eastern civilisations and their contribution to the development of the UN Human Rights agenda. Rejecting the argument based on Asian Values that is often used to undermine the universality of human rights, the book argues that secularism, personal liberty and universalism are at the heart of both Hindu and Buddhist traditions.
