Religiouss For Children:

Religion, Children's Literature, and Modernity in Western Europe, 1750-2000 Jan de Maeyer, 2005 In this book some 25 scholars focus on the relationship between religion children s literature and modernity in Western Europe since the Enlightenment c 1750 They examine various aspects of the phenomenon of children s literature such as types of texts age of readers position of authors design and illustration The role of religion in giving meaning both in a substantive sense as well as through the institutionalised churches is studied from an interdenominational point of view Judaism Roman Catholicism Protestantism and Anglicanism Finally the contribution of pedagogy and child psychology in the interaction between modernity religion and children s literature is also discussed Various articles give a broad overview of the tensions between aesthetics and ethics and the demand for cultural autonomy in the development of children s literature Children s bibles and missionary stories played an important part in the growing diversification of children s literature as did the publication of illustrated reviews for children Remarkable differences are highlighted in the involvement of religious societies and institutions episcopally approved publishing houses and supervisory bodies in the publication distribution and supervision of children s literature This volume adopts a comparative approach in exploring the underlying religious ideological and cultural dimensions of children s literature in modern society

Effects of Alevi-Sunni Marriages on Children's Religious Education and Family Relations Dr. Fatma Kurttekin, 2024-12-31 In this study the views of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on the phenomenon of religion and their children s religious education are examined While there has been a growing body of research on the role and significance of religion in Alevi Sunni families limited attention has been paid to their attitudes towards their children s religious education particularly within the context of cross religious marriages Based on this this study aims to fill this research gap by examining the perspectives of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on their children s religious education and family dynamics using qualitative methods to provide in depth insights Ten families living in Sivas Ankara and Tunceli who were contacted through snowball and purposive sampling participated in the study in which qualitative research techniques were used The data used in the study were collected through questionnaires and semi structured interview forms The data was analzed with the content analysis It was determined that the Alevi Sunni difference did not have a significant impact on the participants religious attitudes or their children s religious education Almost all parents stated that they wanted their children to choose their own path by acquiring experience and knowledge about both religious interpretations understandings The study identified two primary areas of difficulty in Alevi Sunni families familial opposition to the participants decision to marry and conflicts surrounding the children s religious education These tensions may stem from societal pressures to conform to sectarian norms and the fear of losing religious identity through cross mixed intrafaith marriages Such pressures highlight the need for open dialogue and acceptance within families which many participants reported as key to resolving conflicts The provision of religious education in the family and the religious identity of children have been discussed in a separate study Therefore in this study participants views on compulsory religious education activities which are also a subject of debate in society were evaluated In parallel with the findings in the literature the participants opinions were grouped in three categories namely abolishing the courses making the courses optional and improving the courses along with preserving their compulsory status Following the interviews it was seen that the participants could have arguments mostly due to external factors and that their own religious understanding did not have any impact on family life religious attitudes or child rearing Attention was drawn to the need for freedom from prejudices acceptance of the other as he she is honesty trust and a communicative environment of dialogue in order to reduce the tension in these two areas

International Handbook of Inter-religious Education Kath Engebretson,Marian de Souza,Gloria Durka,Liam

Gearon,2010-08-17 This Handbook is based on the conviction of its editors and contributing authors that understanding and acceptance of as well as collaboration between religions has essential educational value The development of this Handbook rests on the further assumption that interreligious education has an important role in elucidating the global demand for human rights justice and peace Interreligious education reveals that the creeds and holy books of the world's religions teach about spiritual systems that reject violence and the individualistic pursuit of economic and political gain and call their followers to compassion for every human being It also seeks to lead students to an awareness that the followers of religions across the world need to be and to grow in dialogical relationships of respect and understanding An essential aim of interreligious education is the promotion of understanding and engagement between people of different religions and therefore it has great potential to contribute to the common good of the global community Interreligious education has grown from the interfaith movement whose beginning is usually identified with the World Parliament of Religions held in Chicago in 1893 This was the first time in history that leaders of the eastern and western religions had come together for dialogue and to consider working together for global unity
