

A Sample Routine Rotation

DH: One of the fascinating elements of these studies lies in the manner in which The Chief adapted each exercise for every individual student at their particular stage of development. If one stood outside Room 310 throughout the week and heard the routines employed in each lesson, seldom would you hear the same rotation of exercises or the same length of exercise from lesson to lesson. He was able to quickly identify what was necessary to continually improve one's playing and how much was needed to get into a free state for the lesson studies. He never stressed an over-abundance of Warm-Up, but rather, a practical employment of material that strengthened on the one hand while it relaxed on the other.

On April 27, 1968, The Chief took the Eastman Trombone Choir to Waterloo, Ontario, Canada, for a clinic-concert session for Ontario Province Music Educators. For this presentation, he prepared a shortened sample version of the Warm-Up studies to illustrate the different aspects of the method, how to rotate the use of the exercises and to demonstrate that each type of exercise has its own beneficial elements when employed on a daily basis. Concert selections by the Choir and one solo composition were programmed into the demonstration to further illustrate how the exercises lead into actual performance situations.
