Heim,2025-08-26 To read the Bible well we need to employ our imagination This volume is the first book length study that takes the Bible s imaginative nature seriously It integrates insights from disciplines like neuroscience metaphor theory and cognition translation theory the affective sciences humor studies and the interdisciplinary study of imagination itself into the academic and theological study of the Bible Knut Heim and Jeffrey Oetter show that reading with imagination is a critical hermeneutic of engagement that fosters close deep lusciously savored and pleasurable readings of the biblical texts Bringing current scholarship from a variety of disciplines to bear on biblical interpretation this book explains that Scripture employs often subtle literary techniques including figurative language emotions and humor that require imagination to recognize and interpret Imagination helps us develop genuinely biblical ideas that get us closer to the meaning intended by the Holy Spirit and the original authors resulting in more accurate interpretations when paired with traditional approaches Even textual aspects that have until now remained odd foreign and confusing can become occasions for imaginative engagement that reveal new meaning and significance A Hermeneutic of Imagination makes the case that reading with imagination is crucial for unlocking the Bible s full potential because it transforms academic study of the Bible into aesthetically inspiring intellectually stimulating emotionally rewarding theologically rich and spiritually transformative adventures of the mind that contribute to problem solving and human flourishing today

Religion of the Gods Kimberley Christine Patton,2009 In many of the world s religions both polytheistic and monotheistic a seemingly enigmatic and paradoxical image is found that of the god who worships Various interpretations of this seeming paradox have been advanced Some suggest that it represents sacrifice to a higher deity Proponents of anthropomorphic projection say that the gods are just big people and that images of human religious action are simply projected onto the deities However such explanations do not do justice to the complexity and diversity of this phenomenon In Religion of the Gods Kimberley C Patton uses a comparative approach to take up anew a longstanding challenge in ancient Greek religious iconography why are the Olympian gods depicted on classical pottery making libations The sacrificing gods in ancient Greece are compared to gods who perform rituals in six other religious traditions the Vedic gods the heterodox god Zurvan of early Zoroastrianism the Old Norse god Odin the Christian God and Christ the God of Judaism and Islam s Allah Patton examines the comparative evidence from a cultural and historical perspective uncovering deep structural resonances while also revealing crucial differences Instead of looking for invisible recipients or lost myths Patton proposes the new category of divine reflexivity Divinely performed ritual is a self reflexive self expressive action that signals the origin of ritual in the divine and not the human realm Above all divine ritual is generative both instigating and inspiring human religious activity The religion practiced by the gods is both like and unlike human religious action Seen from within the religious tradition gods are not big people but other than human Human ritual is directed outward to a divine being but the gods practice ritual on their own behalf Cultic time the symbiotic performance of ritual both in heaven and on earth collapses the distinction between cult and theology each time ritual is performed Offering the first comprehensive study and a new theory of this fascinating phenomenon Religion of the Gods is a significant contribution to the fields of classics and comparative religion Patton shows that the god who performs religious action is not an anomaly but holds a meaningful place in the category of ritual and points to a phenomenologically universal structure within religion itself Bulletin Östasiatiska museet, 1968
