Storytelling Organizational Practices David M. Boje, 2014-06-20. Once upon a time the practice of storytelling was about collecting interesting stories about the past and converting them into soundbite pitches. Now it is more about foretelling the ways the future is approaching the present, prompting a re-storying of the past. Storytelling has progressed and is about a diversity of voices, not just one teller of one past; it is how a group or organization of people negotiates the telling of history and the telling of what future is arriving in the present. With the changes in storytelling practices and theory, there is a growing need to look at new and different methodologies. Within this exciting new book, David M. Boje develops new ways to ask questions in interviews and make observations of practice that are about storytelling the future. This, after all, is where management practice concentrates its storytelling, while much of the theory and method work is all about how the past might recur in the future. Storytelling Organizational Practices takes the reader on a journey from looking at narratives of past experience through looking at living stories of emergence in the present to looking at how the future is arriving in ways that prompt a re-storying of the past.

English Couplets M.R. Shetty, 2007. What Dying People Want Dr. David Kuhl, 2011-07-27. An internationally renowned palliative care physician offers guidance on living with a terminal illness. Based on research funded by the Soros Foundation and extensive interviews with dying people, a profound and practical book about living with a terminal illness over a long period of time. It offers guidance, solace, and helpful strategies for people who are terminally ill, their families, and caregivers. Facing death results in more fear and anxiety than any other human experience. Western medicine has accomplished a great deal in addressing physical pain and controlling symptoms for people with a terminal illness, but much slower progress has been made in understanding and alleviating psychological and spiritual distress. In What Dying People Want, Dr. David Kuhl begins to bridge that gap. He does so by addressing end-of-life realities, physical, psychological, and spiritual, through his own experiences as a doctor and through the words and experiences of people who know that they are dying. He presents ways of addressing the pain of finding new life in the process of dying and of understanding the inner reality of living with a terminal illness. He acknowledges the despair and recognizes the desire for hope and meaning. Dr. Kuhl also makes the provocative case that insensitive communication by doctors creates more suffering for patients than either the illness or the knowledge of impending death and offers both the dying and their caregivers guidance on preventing painful interactions. He provides ways of speaking about difficult topics with physicians, family members, friends, and those who have a terminal illness. This book started with a research question: What is the daily experience of living with a terminal illness? How does that experience affect your sense of self your relationship with others and your understanding of the spiritual Many of those I interviewed asked me to share what they had given me with others who would follow those with a terminal illness as well as their friends and family members who would care for them and about them They asked specifically that I write a book for a general audience and not only for my colleagues in the medical profession This is the book that grew out of that research Dr David Kuhl
