Animated Encounters Daisy Yan Du, 2019-02-28

China's role in the history of world animation has been trivialized or largely forgotten In Animated Encounters Daisy Yan Du addresses this omission in her study of Chinese animation and its engagement with international forces during its formative period the 1940s 1970s She introduces readers to transnational movements in early Chinese animation tracing the involvement of Japanese Soviet American Taiwanese and China's ethnic minorities at socio historical or representational levels in animated filmmaking in China Du argues that Chinese animation was international almost from its inception and that such border crossing exchanges helped make it Chinese and subsequently transform the history of world animation She highlights animated encounters and entanglements to provide an alternative to current studies of the subject characterized by a preoccupation with essentialist ideas of Chineseness and further questions the long held belief that the forty year period in question was a time of cultural isolationism for China due to constant wars and revolutions China's socialist era known for the pervasiveness of its political propaganda and suppression of the arts unexpectedly witnessed a golden age of animation Socialist collectivism reinforced by totalitarian politics and centralized state control allowed Chinese animation to prosper and flourish artistically In addition the double marginality of animation a minor art form for children coupled with its disarming qualities and intrinsic malleability and mobility granted animators and producers the double power to play with politics and transgress ideological and geographical borders while surviving censorship both at home and abroad A captivating and enlightening history Animated Encounters will attract scholars and students of world film and animation studies children s culture and modern Chinese history
