Books Ireland, 2000 Settlement and Community in the Fir Tulach Kingdom Paul Stevens, John Channing, 2012 The Oxford Handbook of the European Iron Age Colin Haselgrove, Katharina Rebay-Salisbury, Peter S. Wells, 2023 The Oxford Handbook of the European Iron Age presents to students scholars and interested general readers a broad overview of current understanding of the archaeology of Europe from 1000 BC through to the early historic periods Excavations at Tlachtga, Hill of Ward, Co. Meath, Ireland Stephen Davis, Caitríona Moore, 2024-04-30 Initial remote sensing survey at Tlachtga Co Meath in 2011 12 highlighted the presence of multiple partially overlapping phases of enclosure at the site Three subsequent seasons of excavation provided critical interpretive evidence with over 15 000 fragments of animal bone human remains charred plant material evidence of metalworking and a hoard of Anglo Saxon silver coins dating to the late 10th century AD The main activity at the site spans four broad periods and two main phases of monumental construction a late Bronze Age to early Iron Age Hillfort Phase 1100 400 BC and a late Iron Age to early medieval AD 400 600 ringfort phase associated with a smaller foundation enclosure the Southern Enclosure This ringfort phase was remodeled later in the early medieval period 9th 10th century AD and augmented by a phase of mound construction in the mid 10th century AD This is contemporary with the deposition of the coin hoard east of the main complex in an apparent craft working area The final phase of the central mound indicates the construction of a timber stockade most likely in the 12th century again with significant craft activity This volume represents the excavation of at least four loci within the broader monumental landscape of Tlachtga charting its progression from Bronze Age hillfort to pre Anglo Norman power display mound The excavations at the Hill of Ward and this publication were made possible through funding by the National Monuments Service via the Royal Irish Academy archaeological research excavation grants and by Meath County Council with additional support by the Office of Public Works and the Heritage Council Ireland's First Settlers Peter Woodman, 2015-12-31 Ireland's First Settlers tells the story of the archaeology and history of the first continuous phase of Ireland's human settlement It combines centuries of search and speculation about human antiquity in Ireland with a review of what is known today about the Irish Mesolithic This is in part provided in the context of the author's 50 years of personal experience searching to make sense of what initially appeared to be little more than a collection of beach rolled and battered flint tools The story is embedded in how the island of Ireland its position distinct landscape and ecology impacted on when and how Ireland was colonized It also explores how these first settlers evolved their technologies and lifeways to suit the narrow range of abundant resources that were available The volume concludes with discussions on how the landscape should be searched for the often ephemeral traces of these early settlers and how sites should be excavated It asks what we really know about the thoughts and life of the people themselves and what happened to them as farming began to be introduced Llangorse Crannog Alan Lane, Mark Redknap, 2020-02-28 The crannog on Llangorse Lake near Brecon in mid Wales was discovered in 1867 and first excavated in

1869 by two local antiquaries Edgar and Henry Dumbleton who published their findings over the next four years In 1988 dendrochronological dates from submerged palisade planks established its construction in the ninth century and a combined off and on shore investigation of the site was started as a joint project between Cardiff University and Amgueddfa Cymru National Museum Wales The subsequent surveys and excavation 1989 1994 2004 resulted in the recovery of a remarkable time capsule of life in the late ninth and tenth century on the only crannog yet identified in Wales This publication re examines the early investigations describes in detail the anatomy of the crannog mound and its construction and the material culture found The crannog s treasures include early medieval secular and religious metalwork evidence for manufacture the largest depository of early medieval carpentry in Wales and a remarkable richly embroidered silk and linen textile which is fully analysed and placed in context The crannog s place in Welsh history is explored as a royal llys court within the kingdom of Brycheiniog Historical record indicates the site was destroyed in 916 by Aethelflaed the Mercian queen in the course of the Viking wars of the early tenth century The subsequent significance of the crannog in local traditions and its post medieval occupation during a riotous dispute in the reign Elizabeth I are also discussed Two logboats from the vicinity of the crannog are analysed and a replica described The cultural affinities of the crannog and its material culture is assessed as are their relationship to origin myths for the kingdom and to probable links with early medieval Ireland The folk tales associated with the lake are explored in a book that brings together archaeology history myths and legends underwater and terrestrial archaeology

Hunter-Gatherer Ireland Graeme Warren, 2022-02-03 Explores the Irish Mesolithic the period after the end of the last Ice Age when Ireland was home to hunter gatherer communities mostly from about 10 000 6 000 years ago At this time Ireland was an island world with striking similarities and differences to its European neighbours not least in terms of the terrestrial ecology created by its island status To understand the communities of hunter gatherers who lived there it is essential that we consider the connections established between people and the other beings and materials with which they shared the world and through which they grew into it Understanding the Mesolithic means paying attention to the animals plants spirits and things with which hunting and gathering groups formed kinship relationships and in collaboration with which they experienced life The book closes with a reflection on hunting and gathering in Ireland today The overriding aim of the book is to provide a point of entry into the lives of the Irish Mesolithic to show the different ways in which people have lived on this island and to show how we might narrate those lives

Celtic from the West 3 John T. Koch, Barry Cunliffe, 2016-09-01 The Celtic languages and groups called Keltoi i e Celts emerge into our written records at the pre Roman Iron Age The impetus for this book is to explore from the perspectives of three disciplines archaeology genetics and linguistics the background in later European prehistory to these developments There is a traditional scenario according to which Celtic speech and the associated group identity came in to being during the Early Iron Age in the north Alpine zone and then rapidly spread across central and western Europe This idea of Celtogenesis remains deeply entrenched in scholarly and popular thought But it has become increasingly difficult to reconcile with recent discoveries pointing towards origins in the deeper past It should no longer be taken for granted that Atlantic Europe during the 2nd and 3rd millennia BC were pre Celtic or even pre Indo European The explorations in Celtic from the West 3 are drawn together in this spirit continuing two earlier volumes in the influential series Viking encounters Anne Pedersen, Søren M. Sindbæk, 2020-09-25 The Viking Congresses bring together scholars of archaeology philology history toponymy numismatics and a number of other disciplines to discuss the Viking Age from a variety of viewpoints This volume contains 44 peer reviewed papers selected from those presented at the 18th Viking Congress held in Denmark in August 2017 The contributors take up the interdisciplinary challenge and the papers cover a wide range of subjects rooted in the past but also connecting to the present The New International Encyclopædia Frank Moore Colby, Talcott Williams, 1922 New International Encyclopedia, 1916 The New International Encyclopædia, 1925 Borderlands Shane Delaney, 2012 Neolithic Stone Extraction in Britain and Europe Peter Topping, 2021-12-08 This book focuses on the introduction of Neolithic extraction practices across Europe through to the Atlantic periphery of Britain and Ireland The key research questions are when and why were these practices adopted and what role did extraction sites play in Neolithic society Neolithic mines and quarries have frequently been seen as fulfilling roles linked to the expansion of the Neolithic economy However this ignores the fact that many communities chose to selectively dig for certain types of stone in preference to others and why the products from these sites were generally deposited in special places such as wetlands To address this question 168 near global ethnographic studies were analyzed to identify common trends in traditional extraction practices to produce robust statistics about their motivations and material signatures Repeated associations emerged between storied locations the organization of extraction practices long distance distribution of products and the material evidence such activities left behind This suggests that we can now probably identify mythologized storied sites seasonality ritualized extraction and the use life of extraction site products The ethnographic model was tested against data from 223 near global archaeological extraction sites which confirmed a similar patterning in both material records It was used to analyze the social context of 79 Neolithic flint mine and 51 axe quarry excavations in Britain and Ireland and to review their European origins The evidence that emerges confirms the pivotal role played by Neolithic extraction practices in European Neolithization and that the interaction of indigenous foragers with migrant miners farmers was fundamental to the adoption of the new agropastoral lifestyle Personifying Prehistory Joanna Brück, 2019-01-31 The Bronze Age is frequently framed in social evolutionary terms Viewed as the period which saw the emergence of social differentiation the development of long distance trade and the intensification of agricultural production it is seen as the precursor and origin point for significant aspects of the modern world This book presents a very different image of Bronze Age Britain and Ireland Drawing on the wealth of material from recent excavations as well as a long history of research it explores the impact of the post Enlightenment othering of the non human on our understanding of Bronze Age society There is much to suggest that the conceptual boundary between the active human subject and the passive world of objects so familiar from our own cultural context was not drawn in this categorical way in the Bronze Age the self was constructed in relational rather than individualistic terms and aspects of the non human world such as pots houses and mountains were considered animate entities with their own spirit or soul In a series of thematic chapters on the human body artefacts settlements and landscapes this book considers the character of Bronze Age personhood the relationship between individual and society and ideas around agency and social power The treatment and deposition of things such as querns axes and human remains provides insights into the meanings and values ascribed to objects and places and the ways in which such items acted as social agents in the Bronze Age world

Exploring Prehistoric Identity in Europe Victoria Ginn, Rebecca Enlander, Rebecca Crozier, 2014-03-19 Identity is relational and a construct and is expressed in a myriad of ways For example material culture and its pluralist meanings have been readily manipulated by humans in a prehistoric context in order to construct personal and group identities Artefacts were often from or reminiscent of far flung places and were used to demonstrate membership of an imagined regional or European community Earthworks frequently archive maximum visual impact through elaborate ramparts and entrances with the minimum amount of effort indicating that the construction of identities were as much in the eye of the perceiver as of the perceived Variations in domestic architectural style also demonstrate the malleability of identity and the prolonged intermittent use of particular places for specific functions indicates that the identity of place is just as important in our archaeological understanding as the identity of people By using a wide range of case studies both temporally and spatially these thought processes may be explored further and diachronic and geographic patterns in expressions of identity investigated

Going Over Alasdair Whittle, Vicki Cummings, 2007-11-22 This wide ranging collection of essays covers the transformation from Mesolithic hunter gatherers to Neolithic farmers It offers a comprehensive and authoritative treatment by leading specialists and provides the best available overview of this fundamental change in human society

Elements of Being Daniela Hofmann, Jessica Mills, Andrew Cochrane, 2005 This volume is the product of a Theoretical Archaeology Group TAG conference session held at Lampeter Wales in December 2003 entitled Mentalities and Identities in Motion Included here are all the papers held there and more besides The session centred on the role of past ways of thinking feeling and acting in social transformation and exploring past worldviews as instead of being relegated to the fictional or anecdotal an integral part of every aspect of human life not just explicit contexts of power struggles and domination but also approachable from the material evidence The contributions are widely spread across space and time ranging from Northern Ireland to Sicily from France to Bulgaria and covering almost every period from the Mesolithic to the Thirty Years War On top of this they are also very different in methodology in the ways they have interpreted the session title and approached their evidence Before rushing headlong into this kaleidoscopic mix then it is worth briefly explaining the rationale behind the session title and the selection and arrangement of papers
