The Man who Invented Saturday Morning David Owen, 1988 The Future and Its Enemies Virginia Postrel, 2011-05-10 Today we have greater wealth health opportunity and choice than at any time in history Yet a chorus of intellectuals and politicians laments our current condition as slaves to technology coarsened by popular culture and insecure in the face of economic change The future they tell us is dangerously out of control and unless we precisely govern the forces of change we risk disaster In The Future and Its Enemies Virginia Postrel explodes the myths behind these claims Using examples that range from medicine to fashion she explores how progress truly occurs and demonstrates that human betterment depends not on conformity to one central vision but on creativity and decentralized open ended trial and error She argues that these two opposing world views stasis vs dynamism are replacing left and right to define our cultural and political debate as we enter the next century In this bold exploration of how civilizations learn Postrel heralds a fundamental shift in the way we view politics culture technology and society as we face an unknown and invigorating future Prime Time Animation Carol Stabile, 2013-09-13 In September 1960 a television show emerged from the mists of prehistoric time to take its place as the mother of all animated sitcoms The Flintstones spawned dozens of imitations just as two decades later The Simpsons sparked a renaissance of primetime animation This fascinating book explores the landscape of television animation from Bedrock to Springfield and beyond The contributors critically examine the key issues and questions including How do we explain the animation explosion of the 1960s Why did it take nearly twenty years following the cancellation of The Flintstones for animation to find its feet again as primetime fare In addressing these questions as well as many others essays examine the relation between earlier made for cinema animated production such as the Warner Looney Toons shorts and television based animation the role of animation in the economies of broadcast and cable television and the links between animation production and brand image Contributors also examine specific programmes like The Powerpuff Girls Daria Ren and Stimpy and South Park from the perspective of fans exploring fan cybercommunities investigating how ideas of class and taste apply to recent TV animation and addressing themes such as irony alienation and representations of the family
