Modern Japan William G. Beasley, 1977 Britain's Encounter with Meiji Japan, 1868-1912 Olive Checkland, 1989-09-15 During the Meiji Era of 1868 1912 British influence in Japan was stronger than that of any other foreign power Although role models were sought from Englishmen and Scotsmen whether diplomats engineers educators or philosophers the first priority for the Japanese was to achieve a transfer of industrial and technical skills As important customers who brought good profits to British industry the Japanese were accommodated when they stipulated on awarding a contract that their own people should work in office shipyard or factory Much new research material discovered in Japan England and Scotland has enabled the detailed examination of a relationship with Britain as Senior and Japan as Junior partner which lasted until 1914 It was on these foundations that Japan was able subsequently to build a great industrial nation Establishing the Revolutionary Birgit Staemmler, Ulrich M. Neighborhood Tokyo Theodore C. Bestor, 1989 In the vastness of Tokyo these are tiny social units and by the standards that most Americans would apply they are perhaps far too small geographically and demographically to be considered neighborhoods Still to residents of Tokyo and particularly to the residents of any given subsection of the city they are socially significant and geographically distinguishable divisions of the urban landscape In neighborhoods such as these overlapping and intertwining associations and institutions provide an elaborate and enduring framework for local social life within which residents are linked to one another not only through their participation in local organizations but also through webs of informal social economic and political ties This book is an ethnographic analysis of the social fabric and internal dynamics of one such neighborhood Miyamoto cho a pseudonym for a residential and commercial district in Tokyo where the author carried out fieldwork from June 1979 to May 1981 and during several summers since It is a study of the social construction and maintenance of a neighborhood in a society where such communities are said to be outmoded even antithetical to the major trends of modernization and social change that have transformed Japan in the last hundred years It is a study not of tradition as an aspect of historical continuity but of traditionalism the manipulation invention and recombination of cultural patterns symbols and motifs so as to legitimate contemporary social realities by imbuing them with a patina of venerable historicity It is a study of often subtle and muted struggles between insiders and outsiders over those most ephemeral of the community s resources its identity and sense of autonomy enacted in the seemingly insubstantial idioms of cultural tradition
