Person-centred Primary Care Christopher Dowrick, 2017-11-27 Primary care grounded in the provision of continuous comprehensive person centred care is of paramount importance in the delivery of accessible and effective health care around the world The central notion of person centred care however relies on often unexamined concepts of self or understandings of what it means to be a person and an agent This cutting edge book explores contemporary pressures on the sense of self for both patient and health professional within a consultation and argues that building new concepts of the self is essential if we are to reinvigorate the central tenets of person centred primary care Contemporary trends such as shared decision making between health professionals and patients and promoting self management assume those involved are able to make their own decisions and take action In practice however medicine often opts for reductionist perspectives of patients as passive mechanical systems and diseases as puzzles At the same time huge political and organisational changes mean time and resources are scarce putting further pressure on consultations This book discusses how we can start to resolve these tensions The first part considers problems posed by the increasing bureaucratisation of primary care the impact of information technology in the consultation the effects of chronic disease on our sense of self and how an emphasis on biology over biography leads to over diagnosis The second part proposes solutions based on a strong ontology of consciousness concepts of creative capacity coherence and engagement and will show how these can enhance the self esteem of patients and doctors and benefit their therapeutic dialogue Combining theoretical perspectives from philosophy sociology and healthcare research with insights drawn from clinical practice this edited volume is suitable for those researching and studying primary healthcare communication and relationships in healthcare and the medical humanities

working with in the intensive care unit ICU of a big city hospital was known as Laura's Line. They were a bit wild, smart, funny, disrespectful of authority but also caring and incredibly committed to their jobs. Laura set the tone with her quick remarks. Frances from Newfoundland was famous for her improvised recipes. Justine, the union rep, wore t-shirts emblazoned with defiant slogans like "Nurses Care But It's Not in the Budget." Shalof was the one who had been to university. The others accused her of being sooo sensitive. They depended upon one another. Working in the ICU was both emotionally grueling and physically exhausting. Many patients quite simply were dying and the staff strove mightily to prolong their lives. With their skill, dedication, and the resources of modern science, they sometimes were almost too successful. Doctors and nurses alike wondered if what they did for terminally ill patients was not in some cases too extreme. A number of patients were admitted when it was too late even for heroic measures. A boy struck down by a cerebral aneurysm in the middle of a little league hockey game. A woman rescued too late from a burning house. It all took its toll on the staff. And yet on good days they thrived on what they did. Shalof describes a colleague who is managing a crashing patient. I looked at her. Nicky was flushed with excitement. She was doing five different things at the same time, planning ahead for another five. She was totally focused in her element, in control, completely at home with the chaos. There was a huge smile on her face. Nurses like to fix things. If they can. Shalof, a veteran ICU nurse, reveals what it is really like to work behind the closed hospital curtains. The drama, the sardonic humour, the grinding workload, the cheerful camaraderie, the big issues and the small, all are brought vividly to life in this remarkable book.
