On Art Connoisseurship:

On Art and Connoisseurship Max J. Friedlander, 2011-11-29 AMONG art historians of today there is hardly anyone who enjoys a position comparable to that of Dr Max J Friedlander He is universally recognized as being probably the greatest living expert notably of course on the early Netherlandish and German masters and in normal times not a day passed on which pictures were not submitted to him for opinion from all parts of the world But he is much more than the mere accomplished expert worried without respite by people eager for his verdict on their possessions the list of his writings all of them revealing the outlook of the born historian makes a truly imposing series culminating in his monumental History of Early Netherlandish Painting issued from 1924 onwards in fourteen substantial volumes And for a long time the whole of this ceaseless activity had for its background Dr Friedlander's connection with the Berlin Picture Gallery and Print Room their marvellous growth during the period in question owes in fact an enormous debt to the distinguished scholar whose career as an official came to an end in 1933 when Dr Friedlander relinquished the post as Head of the great Picture Gallery to which he had been appointed as Wilhelm von Bode's successor It is indeed the very aroma of that institution in its best days which pervades the whole activity of one of the greatest of those who stand to it in the relation of at once alumnus and creator

On Art and Connoisseurship Max J. Friedländer, Tancred Borenius, 1946      Art Market and Connoisseurship Anna Tummers, Koenraad Jonckheere, 2008 The question of whether seventeenth century painters such as Rembrandt and Rubens were exclusively responsible for the paintings later sold under their names has caused many a heated debate Despite the rise of scholarship on the history of the art market much is still unknown about the ways in which paintings were produced assessed priced and marketed during this period which leads to several provocative questions did contemporary connoisseurs expect masters such as Rembrandt to paint works entirely by their own hand Who was credited with the ability to assess paintings as genuine The contributors to this engaging collection Eric Jan Sluijter Hans Van Miegroet and Neil De Marchi among them trace these issues through the booming art market of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries arriving at fascinating and occasionally unexpected conclusions      On Art and Connoisseurship Max Julius Friedlaender, Tancred Borenius, 1941

The Expert versus the Object Ronald D. Spencer, 2004-04-01 The authenticity of visual art has always commanded the attention of experts dealers collectors and the art minded public Is it real or original is a way of asking what am I buying What do I own What am I looking at And today more sophisticated questions are being asked How is authenticity determined and what weight does this determination have in court This book of essays proposes to answer those questions Three lines of inquiry are basic to determining authenticity a connoisseur s evaluation historical documentation or provenance and scientific testing A connoisseur is an expert who evaluates the rightness of a work based on much careful scrutiny of many works by an artist and familiarity with that artist s usual manner of working with materials In determining provenance a researcher traces the physical object from the artist through a chain of ownership to the present owner simple enough in concept though it assumes that the documentation is not faked or inaccurate The goal is to ensure that the object is the same one that left the artist s hand Scientific testing although sometimes useful is often longer on promise than result Dating paint or wood samples for instance can show that a painting was made in Rembrandt s lifetime but it cannot prove that it is by Rembrandt s hand If expert opinion is divided and large sums of money are involved a dispute over authenticity may end up in a court of law where evaluation of expert opinion evidence can be problematic The essays in this book clarify the nature of the methods outlined above and explain based on case law the present status of authentication issues in court Contributors include experts from Christie s London Sotheby s New York and the former director of the Frick Collection as well as leading art historians and art dealers an art conservator a forensic graphologist a philanthropist and collector and a specialist in French art law Their collective knowledge on issues of authenticity will be invaluable for anyone interested in the world of visual art
