Sea Of Heartbreak An Extraordinary Account Of A Newfoundland Fishing Voyage:

Sea of Heartbreak Michael Dwyer,2001 In a small boat in an immense and unforgiving ocean Michael Dwyer sails with seven other crewmen to Labrador on a turbot fishing expedition Sea of Heartbreak is a personal account of his experience aboard the Styx a 65 foot steel trawler as it makes its way to the fishing grounds Dwyer who has lived in Newfoundland his entire life does not want to go on yet another fishing expedition But he feels he has no choice For fourteen years he has been bouncing from job to job and now he has to meet the demands of a growing family Along the way he is filled with wonder at the beauty and serenity of the natural world He observes spectacular sunsets the dazzling northern lights and majestic icebergs in soft hues of green and blue The only sound to break the silence is the hypnotic assuring purr of the boat This sense of tranquillity is fleeting however Not only does the Styx have to navigate its way through the potentially deadly Iceberg Alley Dwyer must fight an inner battle To his dismay he is reminded once again of the unsustainable waste in the fishing industry The nets used in the fishing process haul in more garbage than turbot and then a collector boat rejects most of the turbot that Dwyer and his crew manage to catch Sea of Heartbreak is a vivid insightful and disturbing account of one man s experience of the highly controversial fishing industry in Atlantic Canada Insult to Our Planet & The Florida
