Redclift, David Manuel Navarrete, Mark Pelling, 2011 The challenge presented by climate change is by its nature global The populations of the Mexican Caribbean the focus of this book are faced by everyday decisions not unlike those in the urban North The difference is that for the people of the Mexican Caribbean evidence of the effects of climate change including hurricanes is very familiar to them This important study documents the choices and risks of people who are powerless to change the economic development model which is itself forcing climate change The book examines the Mexican Caribbean coast and explores the wider issues of managing climate change in vulnerable areas of the tropics It also points to the inability to integrate development thinking into climate change adaptation The authors suggest that failures in local governance the transparency of state actions and the local populations lack of effective power represents a greater threat to adaptation than the absence of technical capacity in vulnerable areas Using local case studies of communities fishing villages and tourist destinations this well researched book will appeal to international students and academics working on climate change and professionals in development conservation and tourism industries Technology Steffan Igor Ayora-Diaz, 2015-12-17 New scientific discoveries technologies and techniques often find their way into the space and equipment of domestic and professional kitchens Using approaches based on anthropology archaeology and history Cooking Technology reveals the impact these and the associated broader socio cultural political and economic changes have on everyday culinary practices explaining why people transform or indeed refuse to change their kitchens and food habits Focusing on Mexico and Latin America the authors look at poor rural households as well as the kitchens of the well to do and professional chefs Topics range from state subsidies for traditional ingredients to the promotion of fusion foods and the meaning of kitchens and cooking in different localities as a result of people taking their cooking technologies and ingredients with them to recreate their kitchens abroad What emerges is an image of Latin American kitchens as places where traditional and modern culinary values are constantly being renegotiated The thirteen chapters feature case studies of areas in Mexico the American Mexican border Cuba Guatemala Costa Rica Venezuela Colombia Peru and Brazil With contributions from an international range of leading experts Cooking Technology fills an important gap in the literature and provides an excellent introduction to the topic for students and researchers working in food studies anthropology history and Latin American studies Islands Magazine ,2003-01 Islands Magazine ,2001-01 Cancún.
