Women's Health and Medicine: Transforming Perspective Alice J. Dan, Sue V. Rosser, 2003-06 A vital collection of essays on women s health and women s health studies edited by leaders in the field

The Acute-Care Nurse Practitioner Judy Rashotte, 2013-12-01 From the moment it was first proposed the role of the nurse practitioner has been steeped in controversy In the fields of both nursing and medicine the idea that a nurse practitioner can to some degree serve as a replacement for the physician has sparked heated debates Perhaps for that reason despite the progress of the nurse practitioner movement NPs have been reluctant to speak about themselves and their work and their own vision of their role has thus remained largely invisible Current research is dominated by instrumental and economic modes of discourse and tends to focus on the clinical activities associated with the role Although information about demographics educational preparation position titles reporting relationships and costs of care contribute to our understanding what was missing was an exploration of the lived experience of the nurse practitioner as a means to deepen that understanding as well as our appreciation for their role The Acute Care Nurse Practitioner is based on in depth interviews with twenty six nurse practitioners working in acute care settings within tertiary care institutions all across Canada Employing a hermeneutic approach Rashotte explores the perspectives from which NPs view their reality as they undergo a transformational journey of becoming a journey that is directed both outward into the world and inward into the self We learn how in their struggle to engage in a meaningful practice that fulfills their goals as nurses their purpose was hindered or achieved In large part the story unfolds in the voices of the NPs themselves but their words are complemented by descriptive passages and excerpts of poetry that construct an animated and powerful commentary on their journey Poised between two worlds NPs make a significant contribution to the work of their colleagues and to the care of patients and families The Acute Care Nurse Practitioner offers an experiential alternative to conventional discourse surrounding this health care provider s role

Gender and the Social Construction of Illness Judith Lorber, Lisa Jean Moore, 2002-08-15 In this text the authors consider the interface between gender as a social institution on one hand and Western medicine as a social institution on the other and analyses issues of power and politics which pervade the study of both topics

Liberating Method Marjorie L. DeVault, 1999 Liberating Method reflects the conviction that feminist insights can and should contribute to a sounder more rigorous social science In this book one of the leading practitioners and teachers of feminist methodology examines profound questions about traditional and customary practices of social research Marjorie DeVault argues that established methods too often ignore social oppression as she charts her quest for approaches that will more adequately represent marginalized groups

Revisioning Women, Health and Healing Adele E. Clarke, Virginia Olesen, 2013-11-12 This engaging collection examines the implications and representations of race class and gender in health care offering new approaches to women's health care. Subjects covered range from reproductive issues to AIDS.

Partnership for Health Christina S. Beck, Sandra L. Ragan, Athena du Pré, Athena du Pré, 2013-11-05 In the 1960s feminists voiced their outrage about the health care system in the United States which routinely discriminated against women and in so doing literally jeopardized their health and well-being. Over a decade later women's health advocates still stressed the need for reform of this male-dominated institution because of the on-going threat to the health of American women. In the 1990s nearly 40 years after women began their fight for quality and equitable treatment from the medical profession women unfortunately continue to confront problems on numerous levels including discrimination in medical research and in the availability of insurance and health care providers. Most alarming however is the fact that women today like women in the 60s and before lack information, understanding and adequate diagnoses and treatment from their health caregivers. This book extends from a program of research on women's health issues by the authors. More than 150 audio-taped naturally occurring interactions between health caregivers and their female patients from three different health care settings as well as ethnographic field notes in three additional settings which provide health care to women constitute the data for this investigation. They explore the consequentiality of relational issues during women's health care encounters and examine how health care participants save face, enact roles, co-construct their encounters and accomplish the objective of education and medical care. Unlike earlier works this study utilizes an extensive data collection derived directly from hundreds of interactions between health care providers and their patients as opposed to surveys or case studies of singular practitioners. The authors examine the data in light of insights from a variety of theoretical perspectives and are committed to exploring the implication that medical encounters are collaboratively managed by both patients and caregivers. Given these theoretical and empirical contributions the authors believe this book will advance present understanding in the areas of health and relational communication, women's health care, gender issues in communication, conversation analysis, discourse processes and institutional talk.

Pronouncing and Persevering Susan F. Hirsch, 1998-08-15 The title of Susan Hirsch's study of disputes involving Swahili Muslims in coastal Kenya reflects the image of gender relations most commonly associated with Islamic law. Men need only pronounce divorce to resolve marital conflicts while embattled and embittered wives must persevere by silently enduring marital hardships. But Hirsch's observations of Islamic courts uncover how Muslim women actively use legal processes to transform their domestic lives, achieving victories on some fronts but reinforcing their image as subordinate to men through the speech they produce in court. Pronouncing and Persevering focuses closely on the language used in disputes, particularly how men and women narrate their claims and how their speech shapes and is shaped by gender hierarchy in postcolonial Swahili society. Based on field research and court testimony, Hirsch's book debunks the conventional view that women are powerless under Islamic law and challenges the dichotomies through which Islam and gender relations are currently understood.

Australian Women's Health Innovations in Social Science and Community Research contains a compilation of studies that investigate the status of women's physical and mental health in Australia. The studies in this book will help researchers and practitioners from any country benefit from the methodological approaches used to ask questions of policy, program, and epidemiological interests. From Australian Women's Health you will learn ways to discover the different needs of women depending on their age, race, and economic situation; if these needs are being met; and how politics affect women's health care issues. Australian Women's Health offers suggestions for further research and gives you insight into Australian health policies, the social aspects of women's health, and women's health care costs in particular for women in minority communities. Furthermore, this book investigates issues that affect women based on their occupation, cultural background, and roles in society. This information will help you understand the diverse needs and health care concerns of Australian women. The studies in Australian Women's Health identify current problems and offer future suggestions on how to improve women's health care, including evaluating the positive and negative aspects of women's health centers (WHCs) in order to offer or improve important services to women and maintain government funding; conducting a follow-up survey in conjunction with the Women's Health Australia (WHA) study to learn more about health service utilization; eating disorders; violence; social support; and health care for widowers and services available for treating emotional distress; increasing communication between generations to teach younger women about sexually transmitted diseases; early pregnancy; cervical cancer; and available health services treating the emotional and physical medical needs unique to refugee women and how treatment can be improved; examining the special concerns and health care issues of women in caravan parks or trailer parks such as drug and alcohol abuse; domestic violence; contraceptive practices; and chronic illnesses; addressing how women perceive stress to be a causal factor of heart disease and angina; high blood pressure; ulcers; asthma; and muscular pain; contributing factors to mental illness such as domestic violence and sexual abuse; teaching medical students about domestic violence and how to detect abuse in their patients' lives. Australian Women's Health offers you proven reasons why special attention to women's health needs are important by examining women's own theories about health and its determinants. You will receive information, suggestions, and first-hand accounts from women as to their needs and concerns that will help you shape the future direction of women's health care.

Identity Economics George A. Akerlof, Rachel E. Kranton,2011-09-26 Annotation

This work bridges a critical gap in the social sciences. It brings identity and norms to economics. People's notions of what is proper and what is forbidden and for whom are fundamental to how hard they work and how they learn, spend, and save.
