Research with Farmers Steven Charles Franzel, Helen Van Houten, 1992 The overall objective of this volume is to show the impact of farming systems research FSR activities in Ethiopia on agricultural research and on the development of technologies and policies for small scale farmers The work reported is based on research conducted by scientists at the Institute of Agricultural Research in collaboration with staff from the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center CIMMYT the International Center for tropical Agriculture CIAT and the International Livestock Center for Africa ILCA Ethiopia is one of the few developing countries where FSR activities have been institutionalized and have had an important influence on the development of new technologies for farmers Consequently the research results as well as the policy analysis methodology and the institutionalization process will be relevant to all researchers and change agents concerned with the developing world whether they be economists policy makers or administrators

The Winds of History Andreas Zeman, 2023-10-24 Based on extensive archival research in six countries and intensive fieldwork the book analyzes the history of the village of Nkhlongue on the eastern Mozambican shores of Lake Malawi from the time of its formation in the 19th century to the present day The study uses Nkhlongue as a microhistorical lens to examine such diverse topics as the slave trade the spread of Islam colonization subsistence production counter insurgency decolonization civil war ecotourism and matriliney Thereby the book attempts to reflect as much as possible on the generalizability and global comparability of local findings by framing analyses in historiographical discussions that aim to go beyond the regional or national level Although the chapters of the book deal with very different topics they are united by a common interest in the social history of rural Africa in the longue dure Contrary to persistent clichés of rural inertia in Africa the book as a whole underscores the profound changeability of social conditions and relations in Nkhlongue over the years and highlights how people's room for maneuver kept changing as a result of the Winds of History the frequent and often violent ruptures brought to the village from outside

Martin, 2006-04-20 This study examines the interaction between growing palm oil export production and changes in Ngwa patterns of food production and family relations during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries It challenges the arguments of both dependency and vent for surplus theorists on the dominance of export sector developments and the importance of changes initiated by Europeans Local patterns of export growth and capital investment are shown to have been heavily influenced by independent changes in food production methods gender and inter generational relationships Ngwa producers were affected by falling world prices trading monopolies and colonial taxation During the Igbo Women s War of 1929 Ngwa women protested vigorously against government interference and falling incomes but failed to reverse either trend The subsequent life stories of Ngwa men and women set against a background of archival and anthropological evidence provide the essential link between this historical experience and the current national problems of rural urban drift and moribund export industries

The Trading States of the Oil Rivers G. I. Jones,2000 With a new introduction by John C McCall

The Trading States of the Oil Rivers G. I. Jones,2000 This vivid account of the rise of the remarkable slave and palm oil trading states in the Niger delta in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries also analyses the relation of political development to economic change The author s field studies among the Ijo Ibibio and Ibo peoples have made possible an analysis of the essential processes of economic and political transformation which lay behind the oral traditions There are also detailed and often lively accounts of the European traders The study concentrates on the two principal Oil Rivers states which nineteenth century writers called New Calabar and Grand Bonny For purposes of comparison the adjacent states of Brass Nem and Okrika the Andoni peoples and the Efik state known to Europeans as Old Calabar are also examined The study ends in 1884 the year that marks the beginning of the Brithsh Protectorate government and with it the end of indigenious systems of government which characterised these Oil River States during the nineteenth century The monarchies established in the eighteenth century by King Pepple of Bonny and King Armakiri of Kalabari and the political and economic organisations developed under their rule were coming to or had already come to an end with new oligarchies developing in their place
