People At Home Living In A Warwickshire Village 1500 1800:

People at Home Nathaniel Warren Alcock,1993 This is a unique re creation of the patterns of village life over three centuries during the transformation of the village of Stoneleigh from a medieval to a modern community The earliest sources reveal basic medieval living conditions which were transformed through a Great Rebuilding Further important changes took place during the 17th and 18th centuries and these are examined from the poorest cottagers to the well to do gentlemen The book includes probate inventories and architectural descriptions It provides a full picture of the vernacular buildings in the area set within the context of the society that created them

The Medieval Peasant House in Midland England Nat Alcock,Dan Miles,2014-04-30 The aim of this lavishly illustrated book is to provide an in depth study of the many medieval peasant houses still standing in Midland villages and of their historical context In particular the combination of tree ring and radiocarbon dating detailed architectural study and documentary research illuminates both their nature and their status The results are brought together to provide a new and detailed view of the medieval peasant house resolving the contradiction between the archaeological and architectural evidence and illustrating how its social organisation developed in the period before we have extensive documentary evidence for the use of space within the house Nat Alcock and Dan Miles work on Medieval Peasant Houses in Midland England has been nominated for the 2014 Current Archaeology Research Project of the Year

Domestic Culture in Early Modern England Antony Buxton,2015 A detailed study of the domestic life of the early modern non elite household This book is a detailed study of the domestic life of the early modern non elite household focussing on the Oxfordshire market town of Thame Going beyond the exploration of the domestic economy and trends in living standards and consumption it shows how close examination of the material context within which the household operated can provide evidence of its habitual activities the relationships between its members and the values that informed both The book uses a familiar source the probate inventory supplemented by other contemporary written and pictorial evidence to reveal how activities in the household were directly related to the agricultural mercantile and social environment It illustrates the variable and shifting nature of social relationships and shows how the early modern household was part of the wider economic and social narrative of modernism and how it responded to altered modes of production and consumption social allegiances and ideologies Offering new perspectives to reinvigorate the discussion of domestic relationships and rigorously examine the vexed question of change Domestic Culture in Early Modern England will be of interest to scholars and postgraduate students of material culture as well as historians of the household and family more generally ANTONY BUXTON lectures on design history material and domestic culture for the Department for Continuing Education University of Oxford and other institutions He has published articles in various scholarly journals and holds a PhD from the University of Oxford

English Houses 1300-1800 Matthew H. Johnson,2014-06-11 Houses are more than a shelter from the elements they also offer an unparalleled insight into the beliefs ideas and experiences of the people who built and lived in them In this engaging book Matthew Johnson looks at the traditional houses that still exist throughout the English countryside and examines the lives of the ordinary people who once occupied them His wide ranging narrative takes in the medieval hall and the community it framed the rebuilding and improvement of houses in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and the rise of the Georgian Order in both architecture and eighteenth century culture This passionate book is animated by the conviction that old houses are much more than just pretty tableaux of an idyllic unchanging rural England Vernacular houses are compared to their larger polite counterparts and English houses are placed in the wider context of the British Isles and the Atlantic world beyond The result is a dynamic compelling account of the development of houses in the English countryside and through this a portrait of changing patterns of social life from medieval to modern times Richly illustrated throughout with photographs and drawings this book will be of interest to anyone who wants to understand the significance of our built heritage and the historic landscape

Eighteenth-Century Britain, 1688-1783 Jeremy Black, 2008-09-10 Jeremy Black sets the politics of eighteenth century Britain into the fascinating context of social economic cultural religious and scientific developments The second edition of this successful text by a leading authority in the field has now been updated and expanded to incorporate the latest research and scholarship

Ideas of Landscape Matthew Johnson, 2008-04-15 Ideas of Landscape discusses the current theory and practice of landscape archaeology and offers an alternative agenda for landscape archaeology that maps more closely onto the established empirical strengths of landscape study and has more contemporary relevance The first historical assessment of a critical period in archaeology Takes as its focus the so called English landscape tradition the ideological underpinnings of which come from English Romanticism via the influence of the father of landscape history W G Hoskins Argues that the strengths and weaknesses of landscape archaeology can be traced back to the underlying theoretical discontents of Romanticism Offers an alternative agenda for landscape archaeology that maps more closely onto the established empirical strengths of landscape study and has more contemporary relevance

Medieval Towns John Schofield,A. G. Vince,2003-01-01 Though the book is primarily about medieval towns in Britain many parallels are drawn with contemporary towns and cities all over Europe from Ireland to Russia and from Scandinavia to Italy It is written in the belief that medieval urban archaeology should be a Europe wide study as are the fields of architecture and urban history

BOOK JACKET Interpreting the English Village Mick Aston,Christopher Gerrard,2013-02-07 An original and approachable account of how archaeology can tell the story of the English village Shapwick lies in the middle of Somerset next to the important monastic centre of Glastonbury the abbey owned the manor for 800 years from the 8th to the 16th century and its abbots and officials had a great influence on the lives of the peasants who lived there It is possible that abbot Dunstan one of the great reformers of tenth century monasticism directed the planning of the village The Shapwick Project examined the development and history of an English parish and village over a ten thousand year period This was a truly multi disciplinary project Not only were a battery of archaeological and historical techniques explored such as field walking test pitting archaeological excavation aerial reconnaissance documentary research and cartographic analysis but numerous other techniques such as building analysis dendrochronological dating and soil analysis were undertaken on a large scale The result is a fascinating study about how the community lived and prospered in Shapwick In addition we learn how a group of enthusiastic and dedicated scholars unravelled this story As such there is much here to inspire and enthuse others who might want to embark on a landscape study of a parish or village area Seven of the ten chapters begin with a fictional vignette to bring the story of the village to life Text boxes elucidate re occurring themes and techniques Extensively illustrated in colour including 100 full page images

Almshouses in Early Modern England Angela Nicholls,2017 This book is an examination of early modern English almshouses in the mixed economy of welfare Drawing on archival evidence from three contrasting counties Durham Warwickshire and Kent between 1550 and 1725 the book assesses the contribution almshouses made within the developing welfare systems of the time and the reasons for the enduring popularity of this particular form of charity Post Reformation almshouses are usually considered to have been places of privilege for the respectable deserving poor operating outside the structure of parish poor relief to which ordinary poor people were subjected and making little contribution to the genuinely poor and needy This book challenges these assumptions through an exploration of the nature and extent of almshouse provision it examines why almshouses were founded in the late sixteenth and seventeenth centuries who the occupants were what benefits they received and how residents were expected to live their lives The book reveals a surprising variation in the socio economic status of almspeople and their experience of almshouse life Domestic Life and Domestic Tragedy in Early Modern England Catherine Richardson,2013-07-19 In a theatre which self consciously cultivated its audiences imagination how and what did playgoers see on the stage This book reconstructs one aspect of that imaginative process It considers a range of printed and documentary evidence the majority previously unpublished for the way ordinary individuals thought about their houses and households It then explores how writers of domestic tragedies engaged those attitudes to shape their representations of domesticity It therefore offers a new method for understanding theatrical representations based around a truly interdisciplinary study of the interaction between literary and historical methods The plays she cites include Arden of Faversham Two Lamentable Tragedies A Woman Killed With Kindness and A Yorkshire Tragedy The Making of Home Judith Flanders,2025-10-16 The idea that home is a special place a separate place a place where we can be our true selves is so obvious to us today that we barely pause to think about it But as Judith Flanders shows in her best and most ambitious work to date home is a relatively new idea In The Making of Home Flanders traces the evolution of the house from the sixteenth to the early twentieth century across northern Europe and America showing how the homes we know today bear only a faint resemblance to homes though history What turned a house into the concept of home Why did northwestern Europe a politically unimportant sociologically underdeveloped region of the world suddenly become the powerhouse of the Industrial Revolution the capitalist crucible that created modernity While investigating these important questions Flanders uncovers the fascinating development of ordinary household items from cutlery chairs and curtains to the fitted kitchen plumbing and windows while also dismantling many domestic myths In this prodigiously researched and engagingly written book Flanders brilliantly and elegantly draws together the threads of religion history economics technology and the arts to show not merely what happened but why it happened how we ended up in a world where we can all say like Dorothy in Oz There s no place like home Traditional Buildings in the Oxford Region John Steane,James Ayres,2013-11-29 The pivotal position of the Oxford region in the geological and therefore building history of England is of fundamental importance to the study of traditional construction Oxford occupies a central position on the ancient route between Northampton and Southampton and on the east west road between London The West Country Wales and Ireland For this reason unusually for vernacular architecture the buildings of the region were subject to a wide range of influences This book the fruit of twenty years research provides an account of vernacular architecture in the Oxford region from Anglo Saxon times to the 19th century It begins with a discussion of methods and procedures followed by a description of building materials stone brick slate and thatch This serves as an introduction to the heart of the book eleven chapters dealing with surveys of cruck buildings manorial and moated sites town houses with particular emphasis on Abingdon and houses in the countryside from farmhouses to cottages There are then chapters on fire hazards public houses and public buildings Several appendices are devoted to wall paintings ferramenta apotropaic marks carpentry details secrets under the floorboards fireplaces staircases and windows The book is richly and profusely illustrated with over 500 illustrations photographs maps and a particular strength a large number of drawings of architectural details and sketch perspectives

Houses and Cottages of Britain R. W. Brunskill, 2000-01-01 The sequel to Traditional Buildings of Britain traces the origins and development of traditional buildings by going inside the houses and revealing from their plans how they evolved from basic accommodation to homes giving comfort and privacy The book shows how local traditional materials earth timber stone brick were used in the construction of the buildings

The Culture of Capital Henry Turner, 2014-04-08 Leading literary critics and historians reassess one of the defining features of early modern England the idea of capital The collection reevaluates the different aspects of the concept amidst the profound changes of the period
