Railways Between The Wars:

Railways Between the Wars H. C. Casserley, 1971 Railway Travel in World War Two Peter Steer, 2024-04-30 The popular image of railway travel during the Second World War is that of a sparse service of dirty and grossly overcrowded trains that were forever being delayed The iconic is your journey really necessary poster campaign is credited with discouraging the public from traveling by train This book questions these assumptions and examines the mobility requirements of the British public during the war years and aligns these to the level of service provided by the railways Throughout the war the railways were managed by the Railway Executive Committee REC whose members were all senior railway officers The conflicts between the REC and the government in respect to controlling passenger numbers on the railway system which was overcrowded with essential additional war related freight traffic are examined as are the propaganda campaigns aimed at restricting unnecessary travel The public's response to the travel restrictions are analyzed to determine how railway passengers attitudes and reactions corresponded to the publicly accepted mythology Many British citizens did reduce their railway journeys but for others who had previously had little need to travel by train the exigencies of war resulted in them having to make long and often difficult journeys by rail History of the Railways During the War in South Africa, 1899-1902 Édouard Percy Cranvill Girouard, 1903 Detailed history of the use and importance of railways during the war in South Africa the Boer War written by Sir Edward Percy Cranvill Girouard Director of Railways for the British South African Field Force With chapters on the creation and control of a military railway staff the Cape Government Railway the Natal Railway all facets of the Imperial Military Railways construction organisation by region locomotives railway telegraph stores and accounts etc and the use of armored trains Amazon Railways in the First World War, Volume 1 Andrea Giuntini, Henry Jacolin, 2025-10-27 This book the first in a two volume work resulting from a 2018 conference organised by the International Railway History Association IRHA examines the relationship between the railways and the First World War from a global theoretical methodological and geographical perspective Although World War I 1914-1918 has been studied extensively from virtually every angle the question of the railways has not been the subject of robust historical interest despite their crucial role in every respect and at every stage The war forced the railways to adopt more efficient techniques more quickly than they would have done in peacetime to the extent where military operations would not have been possible without their massive and multifaceted help This collection of essays brings together specialists in the field from a broad range of disciplines and backgrounds to demonstrate how this topic is integral to understanding the developments of European and world history throughout the 1910s and 1920s Railways in the First World War will be a useful tool for students scholars and non specialist readers interested in the history of transport the history of the First World War and World history British railways and the great war ; organisation, efforts, difficulties and achievements Edwin A. Pratt, 1921-01-01 British Railways in Transition Derek H. Aldcroft, 1968-06-18 Border porosities Rozita

Dimova,2021-09-21 This innovative book documents border porosities that have developed and persisted between Greece and North Macedonia over different temporalities and at different localities By drawing on geology s approaches to studying porosity Dimova argues that similar to rocks and minerals that only appear solid and impermeable seemingly impenetrable borders are inevitably traversed by different forms of passage The rich ethnographic case studies from the history of railroads in the southern Balkans border town beauty tourism child refugees during the Greek Civil War mining and environmental activism and the urban renovation project in Skopje show that the political borders between states do not only restrict or regulate the movement of people and things but are also always permeable in ways that exceed state governmentality The Thailand-Burma Railway, 1942-1946: War crimes Paul H. Kratoska,2006 The Railway that Helped Win the Crimean War Anthony Dawson,2022-09-15 Week after week the guns of the British expeditionary force battered away at the defences of Sevastopol eight miles away from Balaklava the port through which all besiegers supplies arrived As autumn turned to winter rain and frost turned the track from Balaklava into a muddy quagmire and soon it became virtually impassable Horses were dying daily in their endeavours to pull carts up the hills to the siege lines and with few supplies reaching the front the troops suffered terribly from malnutrition and frostbite Unless a solution could be found the entire operation was doomed to humiliating disastrous failure When news of the terrible plight of the troops reached the UK a leading railway contractor and his partners undertook to build a railway at cost from Balaklava to the front line and promised that they could construct it in just three weeks after they arrived in the Crimea Though it took almost seven weeks to complete the railway in that time a double track which rose 500 feet from the port and travelled for seven miles to the siege lines had been laid With food clothing and ammunition at last able to reach the front the British along with their French allies were able to capture Sevastopol and bring the Crimean War to an end In this comprehensive and detailed account of the construction and use of what became known as the Grand Crimean Central Railway the author describes the astonishing achievement in building the first railway ever employed in warfare and the first to be used for casualty evacuation thousands of miles from the UK The North Eastern Railway in the First World War Rob Langham,2017-01-24

The North Eastern Railway underwent extreme change after the outbreak of war in August 1914 Within months the company raised its own battalion of men and was the only railway company to do so The NER also set to work adapting to the changes and requirements the war would bring Not only would there be a drop in regular passenger traffic levels and increase in freight transporting both war material and troops but the workshops formerly used to build locomotives were turned over to making weapons of war In December 1914 the railway came under attack from the Imperial German Navy causing damage to the NER s infrastructure and killing several of its men As the war went on locomotives and rolling stock were sent to France to help with the enormous logistics required for operations on the Western Front The planned opening of an electrified railway line for freight went ahead with a brand new fleet of powerful electric locomotives adding to the company s portfolio of electrification with the electrified Tyneside passenger line and Newcastle Quayside NER land was used to build an enormous munitions factory at Darlington and the unprecedented use of women in the work place meant traditionally male only roles were increasingly seeing women take over and freeing men for military service Overseas men of the NER that joined the forces served with honour but many were not to come home The North Eastern Railway in the First World War tells the story of one railway's war of how it continued to operate and adapt and the men and women who served with the company or left to fight for the country's freedom

Railways and the Russo-Japanese War Felix Patrikeeff, Harry Shukman, 2007-02-06 This book explores the nexus between railways and the Russo Japanese War 1904-05 the first modern war and one in which the railways played a key part Felix Patrikeeff and Harry Shukman examine some of the key dimensions of the Russo Japanese War most notably how uncomfortably technological and human dimensions of Russia's war effort interleaved in the course of the conflict

The Thailand-Burma Railway, 1942-1946: Documents, post-war accounts, maps, and photographs Paul H. Kratoska, 2006

The Railroad Telegrapher, 1918 Railways and International Politics Thomas G. Otte, Keith Neilson, 2006 This new collection focuses on its international political and strategic dimensions from the 1860s to the 1930s It examines them as objects of the Great Powers political and economic rivalries and as tools of power projection strategic mobilization and imperial defence

Railwaymen in the War K. Tamayama, 2004-11-30 The Japanese railway soldiers who built the notorious Burma Thailand railway in 1942-43 earned an unenviable reputation for brutality but they have not hitherto told their own story This is the first book to bring to light the testimonies of the soldiers of the Emperor who worked with 55 200 British Australian and Dutch prisoners of war in the construction of the 415 kilometre railway

The War Against Japan: India's most dangerous hour Stanley Woodburn Kirby, 1957 Britain's Railways in the Second World War Michael Foley, 2021-01-18 A fascinating account of the British Railways system's vital role in the defense of the country and support of the Allied forces during WWII The outbreak of the Second World War had an enormous effect on the railway system in Britain The Big Four companies put aside differences and worked together for the war effort The logistics of transporting troops during the evacuation of Dunkirk and the preparations for D Day were unprecedented Meanwhile they had to cope with the new and constant threat of aerial bombing As a result the railway system effectively served as another branch of the military At the end of the war Winston Churchill likened London to a large animal declaring that what kept the animal alive was its transport system The metaphor could have been applied to the whole of Britain and its most vital transport system was the railway This book brings to light the often forgotten stories of the brave men and women who went to work on the railways and put their lives on the line

Eastern European Railways in Transition Henry Jacolin, 2016-04-29 During the nineteenth century railway lines spread rapidly across Europe linking the continent in ways unimaginable to previous generations By the beginning of the twentieth century the great cities of the continent were linked by a complex and extensive rail network Yet this high point of interconnectivity was abruptly cut off after 1945 as the Cold

War built barriers both physical and ideological between east and west In this volume leading transport history scholars take a fresh look at this situation and the ramifications it had for Europe As well as addressing the parallel development of railways either side of the Iron Curtain the book looks at how transport links have been reconnected and reconfigured in the twenty years since the reunification of Europe In particular it focuses upon the former communist countries and how they have responded to the challenges and opportunities railways offer both nationally and internationally Including contributions from historians researchers policy makers representatives of railway companies and railway museum staff the essays in this collection touch upon a rich range of subjects Divided into four sections The Historical Overview Under Russian Protection After the Fall of the Iron Curtain and The Heritage of Railways in Eastern Europe the volume offers a broadly chronological introduction to the issue that provides both a snap shot of current debates and a starting point for further research It concludes that in an era of increased globalisation and interconnectivity and despite the rise of air and road transport and virtual methods of communication railways still have a crucial role to play in the development of a prosperous and connected Europe

Rail passenger statistics in the northeast Corridor 1976-1977-1978 ,1980 A Regional History of the Railways of Great Britain: North and Mid Wales, by P. E. Baughan David St. John Thomas,1980
